The Little Dog's Tail.
Usury Hurts Business.
Some Bright Spots.
The Value of Men.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE Federal Reserve might be interested in the man who hadn't the heart to cut off his little dog's tail all at once.

Kindness of heart made him cut off half an inch every day, until it was short enough.

THE Federal Reserve, established to prevent panics, wouldn't let the United States have a panic all at once.

But it doesn't prevent interest rates of 7 per cent for serious business with 10, 12 and 14 per cent for "call money."

THE little dog probably thought "you might as well cut the whole tail off at once."

Business men might say to the Federal Reserve, "It is kind to prevent a big panic. But I might as well have my panic all at once as have a little 12 per cent panic every day."

FEDERAL Reserve authorities, lecturing and telling the people what they must do with their money as regards investment or speculation, say the wave of speculation interferes with business.

It isn't so much speculation that interferes with business as the high money rate. If a man with money can get 10 to 14 per cent without risk of tieing his money up more than 24 hours, why in heaven's name should he go into any respectable business?

The trouble with business is USURY, not speculation.

THE suggestion in Congress to investigate the Federal Reserve is unnecessary. Everybody is delighted with the Federal Reserve. What Congress might do is to make it a felony for any official connected with a national bank to lend money to anybody by any device at a rate exceeding 6 per cent.

THERE is always a ray of some kind somewhere. Yesterday, while the price of call money went up like a bounding chamois from 6 to 9 per cent, the price of export copper rose to 18¼ cents, domestic delivery 18 cents, highest price since 1920.

CHAIN stores continue to make individual store owners pensive.

Twenty-four chain store systems show that in January this year they increased their sales on the aggregate 22.7 per cent over January, 1928. Twenty-two stores in one month sold $74,323,746 worth of goods.

DR. HUEBENER, professor of insurance at the University of Pennsylvania, says American lives will soon be worth about six times as much as the total national property, real estate, industries and everything else.

He says that unnecessary deaths of adults cost this country $5,000,000,000 a year.

Every intelligent business man knows that the man who runs the property is as important as the property itself.

What would the old Standard Oil Company have been without John D. Rockefeller, or the Ford Company without Henry Ford?

THE Vatican rejoices in the agreement made with Mussolini's government. The payment of $105,000,000, the added territory, the right to coin money, even the probability that many cardinals and archbishops will be appointed members of the Italian Senate are less important than the fact that the Pope will no longer remain a prisoner in the Vatican.

MUSSOLINI, who thinks highly of Napoleon, also an Italian, agrees with Napoleon that a state to be firmly established requires "a spiritual gendarmerie," spiritual as well as military soldiers.

UNCLE SAM will build 15 cruisers. Merely laying the keels of five of them will cost $12,000,000. That makes some good Americans shudder, as they tell you how much good could be done with $12,000,000.

THEY should remember that because we didn't have ships, or flying machines or anything else, we shivered ourselves out of fifty billions of dollars when that last big war started.

WE SPENT about a billion dollars for airships, of which not one ever flew over the German lines, and another billion for wooden ships that cannot now be given away. Better spend a few hundred million dollars getting what you really need, than spend twice as many billions in the panic of last moment efforts.

WILLIAM HAUKE, of Chicago, murdered Isabelle Scheckley, before Illinois adopted the electric chair idea. So William Hauke must be hanged next week. Four other murderers waiting their turn will go to join Hauke by the electric chair.

ILLINOIS would have given a better imitation of civilization, if, instead of changing from the gallows to the electric chair, degrading science by making it a public executioner, a change had been made from the gallows to life imprisonment, with no capital punishment.

LEARNING that Uncle Sam will build 15 cruisers, our good cousin, John Bull, decides to build two of them. This pleases everybody.

Great Britain and the United States are not going to fight. Their interests are about the same. They want a peaceful world in which to live, and grow prosperous. The better prepared each one is, the safer the other will be.

U. S. OPENS INQUIRY ON RADIO

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—A general study of the radio industry has been launched by the Department of Justice, it was announced today.

Attorney General Sargent directed the inquiry to determine whether steps should be taken by the government as protective measures against alleged monopoly and restraint of trade.

Action was taken after the Federal Trade Commission turned over the records of its exhaustive investigation of the so-called "radio trust" to the department. The commission's investigation was terminated without suit being filed against the radio corporations.

Among the companies involved in the federal trade investigation were the Radio Corporation of America, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, Westinghouse, General Electric, Western Electric, United Fruit, Tropical Radio, Wireless Specialties and others.

PLUNGES 15 STORIES TO DEATH

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Detectives today were investigating the death of Mrs. Viola Fokker, 29, who fell or jumped from the window in her fifteenth-floor apartment on Riverside drive last night.

While the police record asserts that Mrs. Fokker jumped to her death, her husband, Anthony H. G. Fokker, wealthy airplane designer and manufacturer, declared she had been suffering from a nervous ailment for some time and probably had fallen out of the window.

CLAD IN NEGLIGEE

The body, clad in a pink negligee and slippers, was found on the sidewalk in front of the apartment building by a pedestrian, who called an ambulance. The surgeon pronounced her dead.

Mrs. Fokker had returned a few hours before her death from Presbyterian Hospital, where she had been under treatment for a nervous disorder.

The tragedy occurred while the maid was preparing dinner and Fokker, tired from a flight in the afternoon, was dozing.

WOMEN'S CHAMPION

Mrs. Fokker was a champion of woman aviators and accompanied her husband on a flight to the Pacific Coast last spring.

Her husband has designed and constructed more than 10,000 planes, including Commander Byrd's trans-Atlantic plane America and the German Fokkers used in the World War.

Mrs. Fokker visited Pittsburgh with her husband last summer en route to Los Angeles in a huge trimotored ship that attracted thousands of curious to Bettis Field. Fokker is frequently in Pittsburgh and is well posted on aviation conditions in the tri-state region. One of the Fokker manufacturing plants is at Wheeling, W. Va.

DWIGHT F. DAVIS ALICE DAVIS

Miss Davis today at Charleston, W. Va., will christen the steamboat Dwight F. Davis in honor of her father, Secretary of War, when that new vessel is launched for service on the Warrior River, between Mobile and Birmingport, Ala. Secretary Davis is attending.

GIRL, MAN RUN WHEN VICTIMS DROP

A hit-and-run driver and his woman companion, who earl, today ran down Verne Campbell, 20, 266 Dunseith street, and William Martin, 21, 270 Dunseith street, while they were walking in Washington boulevard, near Chianti street, were being sought by police.

Both men were treated at the Pittsburgh Hospital for bruises about the head and body, and then discharged.

Campbell and Verne were driving in the boulevard when they ran out of gas. They left their car and were hunting a gasoline station when hit. Campbell said the driver of the car, a well-dressed man accompanied by a woman, stopped and started to get out of the car. When he saw blood streaming from one of Campbell's wounds he slammed shut the door of his coupe and left his two victims on the ground. Campbell was able to get the license number and this has been turned over to the police.

A passing motorist saw the two men, stopped and telephoned Franks-town Avenue Police Station. Campbell and Verne were taken to the hospital in the patrol wagon.

Lindy Goes Fishing In Tropical Waters

BALBOA, C. Z., Feb. 9.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh turned fisherman today amid the tropical beauty of the picturesque pearl islands, some 50 miles southeast of here, in the Bay of Panama.

After his sojourn abroad the airplane carrier Saratoga, the famous airman left the ship's broad deck in a plane yesterday morning, landed here, and then flew to France Field, near Cristobal, after which he hopped off for the fishing trip. He is expected to return this evening for the start of the first leg of his return flight to Miami tomorrow morning.

President of Brazil Visits U. S. in Fall

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—The opinion in Brazilian diplomatic circles is that President Washington Luis will make his first trip to the United States in September to return the courtesy of the visit to Brazil of President-elect Herbert Hoover.

Owing to the nearness of this proposed trip, it is deemed unlikely here that a Brazilian delegation or a special ambassador will be sent to the Hoover inauguration on March 4.

Stepson and Bride Shot After Quarrel

OWOSSO, Mich., Feb. 9.—(INS.)—Clarence D. Helm, 45, a farmer living 12 miles northeast of here, was in jail today after shooting and killing Mrs. Clifford Smith, 17-year-old bride of his stepson, and perhaps fatally wounding young Smith, in a quarrel. Helm, called Sheriff George P. Cock after the shooting and gave himself up.

The Smiths had been married about a month and came to the Helm home 10 days ago from Pennsylvania.

CROWDS WATCH DRY CHASE

While scores of early shoppers in the Diamond market district looked on, federal prohibition agents today captured two truckmen who had fled, it is alleged, when they were caught unloading high test beer into the cellar of Von Hedemann's cafe, 439 Graeme street.

After a lively chase through streets thronged with Saturday buyers, the agents nabbed the two fugitives as they were trying to enter a billiard parlor. They gave their names as August [illegible], 4233 Lydia street, driver, bert A. Darges, Chartier, McKes Rocks, [illegible] held under $ of a sec agents r

KING REMOVED TO SEASHORE

BOGNOR, Sussex, England, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—King George, slowly recovering from the long siege of illness which has stricken him, was safely removed to Craigwell House, near here, today in order to benefit from the sea breeze.

His Majesty left Buckingham palace at 10:34 a. m. in a specially-designed ambulance in which every contrivance was used to avoid vibration, and his car rolled safely and smoothly into the grounds at Craigwell House at 1:24 p. m., just [illegible]ours and 50 minutes later.

Queen Mary was on hand to receive her husband, having traveled from Buckingham palace by a different route.

King George left the room where he had lain ill since late in November, thousands waited outside Buckingham Palace for a bulletin of the ruler who at stages of his illness was very near death's door.

Their wait and hopes were rewarded when through the raised curtains on each side of the royal ambulance His Majesty was seen to raise his hand in greeting and in acknowledgement of their cheers.

HARVARD STUDENTS JIBE AT MILLIONAIRES' GIFTS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Today's issue of the Harvard Lampoon, undergraduate magazine of humor, is devoted largely to caustic consideration of the gifts of two multi-millionaires to Harvard University.

Edward S. Harkness recently gave $11,392,000 to organize the "inner" college plan, and George F. Baker, built the Harvard Business School at a cost of $5,000,000.

The Lampoon remarks upon the "intrusive interest of Dr. Harkness" and speaks of his huge gift as "a $13,000,000 shot of cocaine that will whoop things up for a while, but, oh, what a 'morning after' there will be."

In another article it says:

"Now that Harkness has shelled a sufficient number of berries, we have got to put on the glad rags and make him an A. M. or a Ph. D. The way we did Baker.

"Somebody suggested that the students should be taken into account. He was given a five-foot shelf of the Harvard classics and the gate.

"After John Harvard has had 293 years of varying success, six weeks of applesauce bid fair to leave him with nothing but a pair of pants and a coat of copper nitrate. And now that tradition has been blackjacked and thrown into the corner, these innovators are licensed to peddle their synthetic culture to the universities, colleges and preparatory schools throughout the country.

"Dr. Harkness has made a noise like Santa Claus, but all the university serfs got out of him was a new set of workshops."

Clear, Colder Over Week-End Predicted

Clear, crisp weather will prevail over the week-end, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicted today.

Much colder weather is on the way from the West and will follow the snowstorms predicted for this district today. The mercury tomorrow will fall to between 15 and 20 degrees, Brotzman said.

Slush covered highways today, impeding traffic. Heavy ice is reported at several points along the Upper Allegheny River, but the recent snow and rain have had little effect on the streams and movement of the ice is not anticipated.

British Socialist Author Dies at 76

LONDON, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Jim Connell, author of "The Red Flag" and many other Socialist songs and poems, died last night, at the age of 76, in a hospital at Lewisham, a suburb of London.

His description of himself, written for Who's Who, said: "Education: Under a hedge for a few weeks. Has been a sheep farmer, dock laborer, navvy, railway man, draper, journalist, lawyer of a sort, and all the time a poacher."

Smith Gets $508.38 Pension Each Month

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—The office of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith has received from the state controller a certificate of membership in the Employes' Retirement Service, which entitles him to an annuity of $6,100.51 for life, or $508.38 a month.

The state controller found that Gov. Smith was entitled to credit for 25 years, 10 months and 16 days of public service up to his retirement as governor.

Father of Minister Dies at Nearly 103

The Rev. S. G. Cummings, of 899 Davis avenue, North Side, left Pittsburgh last night for Oakwood, Ont., to attend the funeral of his father, who died yesterday at the age of 102 years and 8 months. The elder Mr. Cummings was said to have been the oldest active postmaster in North America. He was at his desk in the Canadian postoffice until Wednesday when he was taken ill.

MRS. VIOLA FOKKER

Leaping or falling from her apartment on the fifteenth floor of a Riverside Drive apartment building, Mrs. Fokker, wife of the airplane designer and manufacturer, was killed last night.

RESERVE BOARD QUIZ IN DOUBT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—An indirect inquiry by Congress into the action of the Federal Reserve Board in warning member banks against loans for speculative purposes may result from the flurry caused by the tumble of New York Stock Exchange prices, it was indicated today.

Representative Louis T. McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House banking committee, said his committee may undertake a study of the entire credit situation which would, it is believed, bring the reserve board's policy squarely before the committee.

A resolution of Senator La Follette (Rep.), of Wisconsin, restricting brokers' loans, is on the Senate calendar, but it appeared unlikely that the resolution would be reached. Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, also has pending a resolution to this effect. It is now before technical experts of the Treasury Department for examination.

Leaders of both House and Senate appeared to regard the stock market crash as a passing phase and to be opposed to an outright investigation which would amount to a "trial" of the Federal Reserve Board.

Mashed Potato Diet Prescribed for Foch

PARIS, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—The condition of Marshal Ferdinand Foch was described as "stationary but satisfactory" by his physician, Dr. Daveniere, when he left the sick room this morning. He said the marshal's temperature was 99 and that he was having the patient eat lots of mashed potatoes to get back his strength.

TORAL AWAITS FIRING SQUAD

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Heavy military guards blockaded streets leading to the federal district penitentiary this morning in anticipation of the execution at noon—1 p. m., Pittsburgh time—of Jose de Leon Toral, assassin of President-elect Alvaro Obregon.

Newspapers published statements that any attempt to stage demonstrations in connection with the execution would be put down with an iron hand and leaders severely punished.

Prayers, a visit with his family, and hours spent with a Catholic priest occupied his last night on earth.

With the arrival of his wife and his newly born baby, and his father and mother—a special dispensation allowed by the authorities—he squared his shoulders and assumed a cheerful mien.

Permission to Toral's young wife to visit him in the prison came with such suddenness as almost to cause her collapse. Throughout Thursday night she had prayed she would be granted this one boon, she said, but had believed her plea hopeless. When the messenger arrived with word of permission she bundled her infant in a shawl and took it to its father for the meeting it was far too young to comprehend.

28 Children Injured In School Bus Crash

PORTSMOUTH, O., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Twenty-eight children were hurt, three seriously enough to require medical attention, when a school bus in which they were being taken to their homes collided with an automobile and then plunged into Frederick Creek, near Scioto Furnace.

9 ORPHANS TO WITNESS SUICIDE PARENTS' BURIAL

Nine orphans will see their parents laid away tomorrow and then try to forget the double suicide that has robbed them of a mother and a father.

Beside his wife, whose death drove him, remorseful, to suicide, Frank Lesjak, of Sygan, near Bridgeville, will be buried.

The father was found hanging from a rope in a shed in the rear of the Lesjak home—a punishment he may have believed he deserved because he held himself responsible for his wife's death.

Lesjak was to have gone to Magee Hospital, Pittsburgh, where his wife was a patient, to take her home, Wednesday. He was late by two hours. And just before he arrived Mary Lesjak leaped to her death from a fourth-floor window.

REPARATIONS DELEGATES PROPOSE YOUNG AS CHAIRMAN

FIND WIDOW LOST ON RACES

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Race horses that ran last, and race horses that never ran at all, carried away part of the Burnham slot machine wealth, investigators revealed today as they inquired further into Mrs. Selma Burnham's death.

Losses ran as high as $7,000 a day, the representatives of the state' attorney found, and $1,000 a race was not an unusual wager. Mrs. Burnham's total betting losses may have totaled $100,000 they said, stating that at least part of this money was placed on horses that were not even entered to run.

BETS BY PHONE

Although Mrs. Burnham frequented Chicago race tracks where she made her own wagers, investigators were told she placed many other bets through men, acting upon their telephone tips. The state's attorney's office was seeking today to determine if Mrs. Burnham had not thus been made the victim of swindlers.

Former servants and employes of the slot machine factory which Mrs. Burnham inherited when her husband died last July, said Mrs. Burnham was kept under the influence of liquor much of the time during the last few months and that her interest in racing was maintained at high pitch.

GRAVE GUARDED

A guard stood today at Acacia Cemetery where the body of Sanford Burnham lies buried. The action was a precaution pending decision as to whether his body is to be exhumed as part of the general investigation into the Burnham family affairs. A second post-mortem over Mrs. Burnham's body was ordered. The purpose was not made known, but it followed the questioning of several persons yesterday.

Mother-in-Law Dies of Wounds, Man Held

PORTSMOUTH, O., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary Galloway, 62, shot by her son-in-law, Joseph Locke, 42, after he had wounded his wife, Lucy, 18, Wednesday, died here yesterday as Locke was being brought back from Columbus, where he was arrested.

A charge of murder probably will be placed against Locke. Police said Locke admitted shooting his wife, a bride of a month, and Mrs. Galloway after, he said, his wife had given his money to her divorced husband. Mrs. Locke, wounded, is not expected to live.

Saloon League Saves Records from Flames

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Twelve companies of firemen fought more than two hours before they could subdue flames which swept a four-story brick warehouse of the Morehouse-Martens Company in the heart of the downtown business section, last night.

Records of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, in offices adjoining the warehouse building, were moved when it was found the flames would spread.

Estate of $50,000 Left by Underwood

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Former Senator Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, left an estate valued at approximately $50,000, letters of administration filed with Probate Judge J. P. Stiles indicated He left no will.

The estate consists principally of stocks and bonds and goes to the widow, Mrs Bertha Underwood, and two sons, Oscar W. Underwood, Jr., and John Lewis Underwood.

8 OF 12 INCOME TAX-DODGERS CONVICTED

The conviction of Joseph Bove late yesterday in Federal Court for evasion of income taxes and a signed plea of no defense by Fred Stratman to a tax evasion charge, marked the disposal of eight of the 12 indictments against alleged tax dodgers handed down in January by a special grand jury.

All the cases disposed of have been victories for the government, two through convictions, two through pleas of guilty and four through pleas of no defense.

The jury in the trial of Bove deliberated 35 minutes. Attorney William H. Colvin, counsel for Bove, was granted permission to file a motion within four days for a new trial. Stratman will be sentenced March 2, Judge F. P. Schoonmaker granting a motion by Attorney C. B. Prichard for a continuance, because Stratman is listed for trial next week as a defendant in the Twenty-third Ward rum conspiracy indictment.

One Missing After W. Va. Mine Blast

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Chief R. M. Lamble, of the State Mining Department, was advised today that one man was unaccounted for and several others escaped in an explosion of the Bower No. 5 mine of the West Virginia Coal and Coke Company, in Braxton County. The message from the Bower office said a "local" explosion had occurred and asked for help. Two inspectors were sent to the scene.

Towanda Farmhand Convicted of Murder

TOWANDA, Pa., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Arthur Leonard, 23-year-old farmhand, was convicted today of first-degree murder for the killing of Mrs. Juniata Jones, of Herrickville. The jury recommended life imprisonment.

Mrs. Jones was beaten to death in her Herrickville home, near here, December 4. Leonard's trial opened here last Monday and the case went to the jury yesterday afternoon.

Weather Conditions.

Low pressure covers the eastern states with centers of disturbance over Western Pennsylvania and Western New York and over Alabama. The disturbances are causing cloudy weather with snow over the north, and rain over the southern states. Another low appears over the Canadian Northwest, causing cloudy weather, light snow, and mild temperatures over that section.

A ridge of high pressure extends from the far Northwest southeastward to the southern plains, with centers over the Plateau section and over Kansas and Oklahoma. This center is causing cold weather over all the plains, with zero temperatures as far south as Oklahoma City and 24 at San Antonio.

River Conditions.

Light snow occurred over the Allegheny basin and the lower Monongahela. There was no change in the river stages nor in the ice conditions. Stage at Pittsburgh is 11.4 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.0, and Dam No. 6, 8.3. The dams are up.

Man Takes "Lift," Injured in Crash

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Feb. 9.—A few minutes after he had begged a ride from a passing motorist, Martin Bordell, 16, of Springdale, was seriously injured when the car skidded on the icy Freeport road and plunged down an embankment. He is in Citizens General Hospital here with fractures of both arms. Wilbur Thom, 37, of Cheswick, owner and driver of the car, escaped with bruises.

Local Sewer Bill in Senate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—A measure to legalize a sewer outlet into the Allegheny River at Thirty-second street, Pittsburgh, has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania.

SCIENTIST SHIP SILENT, HUNT STARTED

MANILA, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—The steamer Illyria, which left Boston, Mass., last October, carrying a number of scientists, bound for the South Sea Islands, has not been heard from since January 12.

Insular customs authorities here have received a message from the American embassy at Tokyo asking aid in locating the vessel.

The Illyria, a two-master vessel, was under charter to Cornelius Crane of Chicago, and was last heard off Turk Island in the Caroline group.

Scientists here say the vessel had no fixed course and they take the hopeful view that it has entered an area from which it cannot make the radio heard.

NOTED SCIENTISTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—The two-masted, square-rigged vessel, Illyria, which was reported 26 days overdue in making radio calls, carried a group of noted scientists from a number of American institutions.

The party was composed of Dr. Albert W. Gerre, Stanford University zoologist and expert on marine life; Dr. Karl P. Schmidt, curator of the Chicago Field Museum; Dr. W. L. Moss, of the Harvard Medical School; Sidney Heap, English scientist, and Cornelius Crane, of Chicago.

Ships in the vicinity of the Caroline Islands have been endeavoring to locate the vessel through radio calls.

RECENT MESSAGE

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Stephen C. Simms, director of the Field Museum, said last night no concern is felt for the safety of the steamer Illyria, bearing a museum expedition under command of Cornelius Crane to the South Seas. A message was received from Mr. Crane about a week ago, when the Illyria was leaving Galapagos for the Marquesas Islands in the Pacific.

FEEL NO FEAR

MELROSE, Mass., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Miss Katherine M. McMillan, sister-in-law of Capt. Selden B. Boutiller, skipper of the Field Museum ship Illyria, reported as missing, said at her home here last night that no fear was felt for the safety of the Illyria.

Miss MacMillan said that reports concerning the safety of the Illyria might have been due to the fact that changes had been made in the itinerary of the expedition after it left Boston.

Wealthy Chicagoan Shot, Shields Foes

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Who shot John J. Boyle, and why, was a question only Boyle could answer today—and Boyle, wealthy cafe owner, lay near death, refusing to tell. Boyle said he was shot "by a couple of policemen who couldn't stand a little kidding," but he would not name them. "If I get well, I'll tell," he said. "If I die, it makes no difference." One hundred policemen, who cover beats in the North Shore section, in which Boyle's restaurant and soft drink parlor is located, were to be questioned today.

W. Va. Youth Meets Death on Gallows

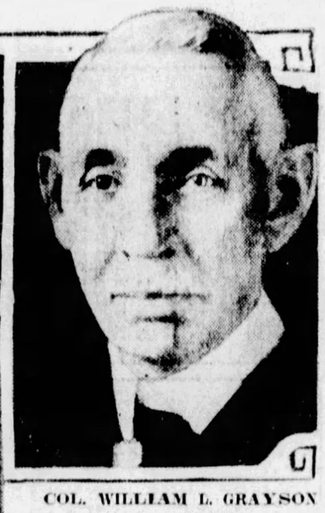
MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Henry Grogan, 20-year-old Raleigh County Negro, convicted yesterday of attacking a white woman, was hanged at the state prison here last night.

The trap was sprung at 9:57 and the prisoner was pronounced dead at 9:11. Grogan walked unassisted to the gallows, a distance of about 10 feet from his cell. He said he had nothing to say when the usual question was asked after he had mounted the gallows, but he followed the prison chaplain in prayer.

VETS' CHIEFS APPROVE CONTEST

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE EUGENE P. CARVER, JR.

Commander-in-Chief Carver, Veterans of Foreign Wars, who today indorses the national flag contest conducted here by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, as he discusses veterans' affairs with President Coolidge, who has accepted the honorary presidency of the United States Flag Association, sponsoring the contest.



COL. WILLIAM L. GRAYSON

Commander-in-Chief Grayson, United Spanish War Veterans, also indorses the contest today.

VETERANS LAUD FLAG STUDY

Men who have volunteered to serve the flag across the seas, men who know what it symbolizes, today add their words of praise to the flag contest being conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers.

Many letters have been received commending the flag contest. The following speak for themselves.

Col. William L. Grayson, Commander-in-chief, United Spanish War Veterans—I most heartily indorse the flag contest plan of the United States Flag Association. To develop and forever hold sacred the ideals and institutions of America should be the cherished thought of all lovers of our great nation. The flag itself stands for our institutions and our ideals and patriotic respect and reverence for the flag must bring us all to a sincere appreciation of the blessings that we enjoy as citizens of our great Republic. It is my earnest wish that the flag contest shall meet with the greatest possible success.

Eugene P. Carver, Jr., Commander-in-chief, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States—I am very pleased to indorse the flag contest plan of the United States Flag Association. Our flag has always been the symbol of what this country represents. If the children can be taught to revere and appreciate our flag, it is but a short step to teach them appreciation of what the flag stands for. I wish the flag contest all possible success.

Marilyn Miller's Parents Remarried

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. Caro G. Miller, parents of Marilyn Miller, musical comedy star, are again united by marriage. Simplicity marked the second ceremony here yesterday, which followed a reconciliation brought about by their daughter.

They will sail shortly on a second honeymoon to Honolulu. They had been divorced 10 years ago in Chicago.

Bad Check Passer Starts Year Term

Harry H. Millen, alias Donworth Leslie, of Frankstown avenue, will be taken to the workhouse today to begin a one to two-year sentence on three charges of forgery and one of false pretense. Millen was sentenced by Judge James H. Drew in Criminal court yesterday after he pleaded guilty to passing spurious checks totaling $140.

Dog Dies by Boy After Rescue Fails in Fire

READING, Pa., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Clutching to his side the body of a pet dog that went to his death to be with him, Harvey Reinert, 5, was found burned to death in the ruins of the farm home of his foster-father, Nathan Dry, of Topton.

The boy and the dog had been left in the home alone when the foster-parents came to Reading on a shopping tour. Neighbors noticed the place burning, and broke down a kitchen door. The family dog ran out to safety, but when several people attempted to enter the house to search for the boy, the dog accompanied them.

He did not return when the neighbors were forced back by the flames.

PATRIOTISM AIM OF CONTEST

The United States Flag Association, under whose auspices the Hearst newspapers are sponsoring the National Flag Contest, which offers two trips around the world to the boys and girls of America, is the only patriotic organization in the nation headed by the President of our country as honorary president.

This is because the United States Flag Association has as its entire and sole purpose the spreading of understanding and appreciation for the flag of our country and the ideals and institutions for which it stands.

When Col. James A. Moss, U. S. A., retired, started the work of founding the flag association, he invited President Coolidge to accept the post of honorary president. President Coolidge, in a letter directed from the White House, replied:

COOLIDGE LAUDS WORK

"The United States Flag Association has done me the honor to invite me to serve as its honorary president, and I am doing myself the honor promptly to accept the service.

"Unless there is an eternal readiness to respond with the same faith, the same courage and the same devotion in the defense of our institutions which were exhibited in their establishment, we shall be dispossessed, and others of sterner fiber will seize our inheritance. It is,

RAILROAD MEN SAY BLUE LAW HURTS CITY

Pittsburgh is shunned because of the blue law forbidding Sunday recreation railroad men said today, pointing out that far more week-end excursions are run to New York, Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit than to this city.

Joseph P. Taggart, assistant general passenger agent of the Baltimore and Ohio, said the people brought here on that road's Sunday excursions to a large extent are former residents or persons with friends and relatives here, who come to visit, and are not attracted by the city itself.

FEW ATTRACTIONS HERE

Some come for no other reason than to see the city, Mr. Taggart said, but they do not often repeat the visit, because they find Sunday here such a dull day that they do not care to return with little for them to do but visit the parks and the Carnegie Institute.

On the other hand, cities like Cleveland, Washington, Detroit and Chicago, with their Sunday big league baseball games and other entertainment, lacking in Pittsburgh, are visited repeatedly by the week-end excursionists.

"While no check has been made on regular train service to determine whether residents of Pittsburgh travel to other cities for their Sunday amusements," said Vice President E. W. Smith, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, "it is reasonably certain that they do.

VISITORS OUTNUMBERED

"Last year the Pennsylvania Railroad operated 32 of what are known as 'over-Sunday excursions' from Pittsburgh, while but 265 trains were originated at other points on our railroad, destined to Pittsburgh.

"Of interest in this connection is the fact that on what might be termed our major excursion trains, such as those operated between Pittsburgh and New York and Chicago, from two to three times as many passengers were carried from Pittsburgh to New York and from Pittsburgh to Chicago, as traveled on similar trains originating in Chicago and New York."

COOLIDGE'S APPROVAL URGED

PARIS, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—The committee of experts who have gathered here to take up the great problem of reparations revision got under way today with an informal session at the Bank of France, during which the question of a permanent chairman was the most important to come up.

There was a strong feeling that Owen D. Young, of the unofficial American delegation, should take that post and it was semi-officially learned at the close of today's session that President Coolidge is to have the final say whether Mr. Young should accept the presidency.

PROPOSED BY FRANCE

In the course of the discussion of the preliminary measures of organization, Jean Parmentier, French delegate, asked recognition of the temporary chairman, Emile Moreau, governor of the Bank of France; and proposed Mr. Young as permanent chairman.

The noted American expert, who played so prominent a part in the development of the famous Dawes plan, demurred, saying that in view of a statement attributed to President Coolidge a few days ago, that a European and not an American delegate should be chairman, he felt he could not accept. He proposed, instead, another delegate, Alberto Pirelli, Italian delegate, is understood to have been the man suggested by Mr. Young.

COOLIDGE TO BE INFORMED

Signor Pirelli expressed appreciation of the honor, but insisted that Mr. Young's nomination should be made unanimous. The 12 allied and German delegates then hinted that perhaps an expression of their earnest wish that Mr. Young accept the chairmanship be conveyed to President Coolidge, to which the committee agreed.

It was said that the British or French embassy at Washington will make the necessary call at the White House today and a reply is expected before the committee meets for its first official session on Monday afternoon.

Retail Lumbermen Elect New Officers

The three-day convention of the Retail Lumber Dealers Association of Western Pennsylvania closed yesterday with the election of officers. Sessions were held in the William Penn Hotel. A. M. Haines, of Connellsville, was elected president.

Other officers elected were: First vice president, F. A. Moesta, of Kittanning; second vice president, James B. Wallace, of McKees Rocks; treasurer, G. P. Textor, of Wilkinsburg; secretary, R. F. McCrea, of Pittsburgh; general counsel, Carl Van De Vort, of Pittsburgh, and field secretary, M. W. Dickey.

New Tile to Make Tall Buildings Taller

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—A new variety of tile is expected by some experts to make possible the erection of buildings more than 100 stories high. Prof. George A. Bole told the American Ceramic Society of experiments with it. Compared with that in general use, it is lighter and offers more resistance to fire and has greater durability.

BLUE LAW SUPPORTERS TO HOLD MASS MEETINGS

The Sabbath Association of the Pittsburgh Area has completed arrangements for two of the simultaneous group of district mass meetings to be held Sunday, February 17, by those opposing liberalization of Sunday observance legislation.

McKeesport and Carnegie have been selected as two of the meeting places, the Rev. Dr. Robert M. Blackwood, executive secretary of the Sabbath Association, has announced.

The Rev. Dr. James McGinnis, pastor of the Carnegie United Presbyterian Church, will be chairman of the meeting in his home church which will be addressed by Attorney William H. Pratt. Churches of Carnegie, East Carnegie, Oakdale, Bridgeville, Greentree, Imperial, Woodville, McKees Rocks, Union, Rennerdale, Crafton and Ingram are co-operating in this meeting.

The McKeesport meeting will be held in the First Presbyterian Church there. The Rev. A. M. Billman will be chairman and the speakers will include the Revs. Dr. William N. Woodfin, pastor of the Third United Presbyterian Church, and Dr. Blackwood. All Protestant congregations of the McKeesport district will be represented at this meeting.

Rothstein Card Game Players Get Summons

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Twenty-seven persons, friends and acquaintances of the late Arnold Rothstein, slain New York gambler, have been ordered by Surrogate O'Brien to appear in court next Friday to tell what, if anything, each knows of Rothstein's business affairs, on a motion by temporary administrators for Rothstein's estate.

Among those called to appear are James Mehan and A. C. (Titanic) Thomas, two of those alleged to have been in on the high stakes game at which Rothstein dropped a quarter million dollars a week before he was killed. Because of his alleged refusal to pay off, one police theory has it, he was shot down.

TRUCK HITS POLES, 11 HURT AS FIRES, BLASTS FOLLOW

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—(INS.)—Eleven persons lay seriously injured today and John Miller, 76, was believed to be dying in one of the strangest accidents and fires on record here.

A gasoline truck crashed into two poles on Southampton street, the tank being fired by contact with live trolley wires. A subterranean fire in the sewerage system followed. Manhole blasts added to the excitement. Trolley lines were tied up and the street had to be closed to traffic.

George N. Dill, driver of the truck, said that the steering gear broke and that he was unable to avoid the accident.

When the first pole fell it crashed through the window of a trolley car, injuring eight men and women and shaking up 20 others.

Burning gasoline swept down the street and ignited a bridge. Miller fell through one of the holes firemen had chopped in the bridge, and was pulled from the creek by means of a life line.

Meanwhile, in another part of the city, John D. Currie, 48, of Cliftondale, was burned in a fire which caused a near-panic among patients at Phillips House, Massachusetts general hospital. The fire followed the explosion of a gasoline tank in the tool shed in the hospital yard. Thirty-five patients in one ward were carried to the corridors, but were not removed from the hospital.

Must Appear

MISS MABEL BOLL

New York Supreme Court ruled that Mabel Boll, aviatrix, must appear for examination in suit brought by Texas jeweler, who charges he was not paid for jewelry purchased for the "Queen of Diamonds." Jeweler states $1,650 is still due on $2,400 available bought for Miss Boll by Capt. Albert Bach. She will be asked if in 1918 she was known also as Mabel Bach.

Lawrenceville Man Ends Life With Gun

Two years of ill health, it is believed, caused Adam Schorner, 60, of 328 Thirty-ninth street, to end his life, the coroner's report states. Schorner fired a bullet into his head in his home late yesterday, it was reported.

ROME PREPARES TO CELEBRATE CONCORDAT

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL,
International News Service.

ROME, Feb. 9.—Church ceremonies beginning tomorrow in celebration of the seventh anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius XI will also embrace ceremonials of joy over the accord between the Catholic church and the Italian state.

Next Tuesday is the actual date of the anniversary of the Pontiff's coronation, but a solemn Te Deum will be sung tomorrow in the basilica of St. John Lateran, which adjoins the Lateran palace.

SIGN MONDAY

The treaty of conciliation between the Vatican and the state will be signed on Monday in the Lateran palace.

Reports that a group of cardinals and archbishops might be appointed senators in the Italian Parliament were said today to be groundless.

It is now understood that the reason the Pope abandoned the original plan for extension of Vatican territory is that he preferred, instead of territorial extension, the official recognition of extra-territorial rights for many church properties scattered throughout Rome.

INCLUDE EMBASSIES

These properties include the embassies and legations of envoys accredited to the Holy See and church and educational institutions.

The Pope, it is said, wished to emphasize that he does not require real temporal power over his subjects, but full recognition of "visible sovereignty."

The King of Sweden was received in private audience by the Pope this morning. Later the King visited Cardinal Gasparri, the papal secretary of state. He is the first secular ruler to be received by the Pontiff since announcement was made of the settlement of the long conflict between the Catholic church and the Italian state.

Ice-Bound Ships In Baltic Get Aid from Air

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—An airplane was used here yesterday for the first time to assist ice-bound shipping.

A Lufthansa machine flew over the Baltic in starch of vessels frozen in and reported their positions by radio to the battleships Schleswigholstein and Elsass, which are bucking the ice to liberate or provision them.

Many of the ice-bound vessels have no radio and are thought to be on short rations. Daily flights are planned while the situation holds.

KEYES FIGHTS CONVICTION

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—From his cell in the county jail, Asa Keyes today directed his fight to escape imprisonment. The former district attorney of Los Angeles County was convicted here last night with Ben Getzoff and Ed Rosenberg of conspiracy to bribe.

The jury of 10 women and two men, after deliberating three and one-half hours, upheld the state's charges that Keyes received $165,000 and other considerations for lax prosecution of fraud cases.

All three defendants, who will be sentenced Monday, announced they would appeal if a new trial is not granted. The penalty for conspiracy to bribe is one to 14 years.

The bribery case grew out of the collapse here in May, 1927, of the Julian Petroleum Corporation when it was discovered that about $100,000,000 worth of spurious stock had been sold to the public.

Keyes conducted an investigation which resulted in the filing of charges against 50 or more persons, among them certain officials of the Julian Corporation. One after another these charges were dropped until eventually only two were held.

$1,000,000 STREET PAVING LAUNCHED BY CITY COUNCIL

Work will be started soon on the 1929 street repaving schedule, estimated to cost about $1,000,000, as a result of action yesterday by the Councilmanic Committee on public works.

Projects to be financed by tax revenue total $483,500, for which $500,000 was appropriated in this year's budget, and the balance of the improvements will be paid with funds from the 1928 bond issue.

Carrying out the committee's policy of repaving streets that serve most people as connecting links between communities, President James F. Malone obtained approval of the improvement of Hazelwood avenue, between Second avenue and Beechwood boulevard.

REPAIRS BADLY NEEDED

Malone explained the thoroughfare has been badly in need of repair for years. The improvement, he said, would promote vehicle communication between the Glenwood, Hazelwood, East Liberty and Squirrel Hill districts, with Homestead and sections of the city south of the Monongahela River.

On motion of Daniel Winters, the committee approved the repaving of South Eighteenth street, from Josephine street to Arlington avenue.

Projects to be financed with bond funds are: The Hazelwood improvement, $70,500; Water street, between Penn avenue and Grant street, $125,000; West Carson street, between Corliss and Steuben streets, $125,000; Windgap road, between Ingram car barns and Chartiers Creek Bridge No. 2, $63,500.

OTHER STREET WORK

Improvements to be financed by current revenues are: Third avenue, from Smithfield street to Ross street, $13,500; Stanhope street, between Allendorf and Huxley streets, $7,100; W. lie avenue, between Fullerton and Arthur streets, $14,500; Baldwin road, between Crafton road and Noblestown road, $13,000; Grotto street, between Spencer and Vassar streets, $17,000; Frankstown avenue, between Brushton avenue and Oakwood street, $25,000; Frankstown avenue, between Lang avenue and West street, $25,000; Chartiers avenue, between Steuben and Wedt streets, $31,000; Lanpark street, between Tyndall and Hillsboro streets, $11,500; Franklin road, at Perrysville avenue, $8,000; Bedford avenue, between Duff and West streets, $26,000; Grandview avenue, between Shiloh and Merrimac streets, $35,000; Berkshire avenue, from end of present pavement to Pioneer street, $21,000; Arlington avenue, between Amanda and Warrington avenues, $32,000; Federal street, between Alpine avenue and Federal street extension, $13,000; Forty-sixth street, between Butler street and St. Mary's Cemetery, $27,000; Davison street, between Forty-fourth and Fortieth streets, $27,000; South Eighteenth street, between Josephine street and Arlington avenue, $83,000; Brighton road, between Island avenue and Irwin avenue, $24,000.

Previous to selecting the streets for repaving, Council granted a hearing to Henry Fox, heading a delegation from the Duquesne Heights Civic Club, which requested improvements in the Nineteenth Ward.

TAXI CRASHES INTO THEATER

Several pedestrians in Murray avenue, near Darlington road, narrowly escaped serious injury when a taxicab collided with another machine and was forced across the sidewalk into the lobby of the Manor Theater, in Murray avenue, last night.

The theater lobby was damaged to the extent of $75, according to Harry Thomas, manager.

Homer D. Chroade, 21, and Francis J. Down, 21, both of Smethport, Pa., and both students at Carnegie Institute of Technology, were riding in the automobile that collided with the taxicab of Joseph Hoover, 25, of 1216 Irwin avenue, North Side.

Neither Chroade nor Down would tell police who was driving their automobile, a hired machine.

Both were charged with reckless driving, as was the taxi driver.

An additional charge of violating the automobile laws was placed against Down, who would not produce a driver's license.

Butter and Egg Men Elect 1929 Officers

The Pittsburgh Butter and Egg Exchange, at its annual meeting, elected William G. Yost president, J. T. Christian, first vice president; G. C. Hofmann, second vice president; A. V. Mason, secretary, and R. J. Philpot, treasurer. The new directors are G. H. Ferguson, E. W. Stoker, A. B. Marcus and J. M. Waechter. They, with W. J. Craig, G. T. Henderson and W. W. Feisley, comprise the board of directors for 1929.

Phone as Weapon, Angry Tailor Routs Bandit

STEUBENVILLE, O., Feb. 9.—J. H. Moss, tailor, demonstrated that a telephone and some cuss words are more potent than a timid bandit with a gun.

When a well-dressed stranger walked into his shop in the heart of the city here, covered him with a revolver and demanded his money, Moss grew angry.

Grabbing the telephone for a weapon, Moss advanced to do battle. The gunman looked surprised, pocketed his revolver and fled.

COOLIDGE BANS FOREIGN TOUR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(INS)—President Coolidge does not plan any trips to foreign countries after he leaves the White House.

It was said the condition of Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, Mrs. Coolidge's mother, was such that the Coolidges may be called there any time.

George Washington University, located here, has offered to confer degrees on President and Mrs. Coolidge on George Washington's birthday, February 22, and both will accept, it was stated today at the White House.

The President plans to deliver a short address bearing on the life of Washington on that occasion.

Hat-Changing Theft Suspect Held Over

George Lyons, 24, of 702 West North avenue, who admitted, police say, resorting to quick change of hats to escape detection, following holdups, was held for court, charged with larceny, entering a building and pointing firearms by Magistrate E. M. Hough in North Side Police Station today.

He confessed entering the haberdashery of Sol Mintzer, at 410 Federal street, the night of January 31, and stealing clothing and hats valued at $350. He was arrested by Carnegie police Wednesday.

Choir to Sing for G. A. R.

The North Side Christian Choral Union will sing tomorrow evening at the G. A. R. Home, Hawkins Station, under the direction of Charles Heffner. Miss Mary Williams will be the speaker.

MANY TALENTS IN SINGLE FAMILY

One of Europe's most noted scientists and explorers, a captain in the Hungarian army during the World War and now the head of one of Pittsburgh's most talented families, today is an American citizen.

He is Ludwig von Fuehrer, and lives at Rosedale, near Verona. Besides being a noted scientist and explorer, he has written several books—one a five-volume work on birds, another on hunting and fishing. Speaking nine languages and many dialects, he has also served on diplomatic missions for several of Europe's big powers, especially in the Balkans, on which he is an authority.

He is now living in retirement, wondering if the talents of the younger generation are as promising as the old.

WHAT FAMILY DOES

And he has reason to wonder. For in the same house with him he has the wife who has edited his books, and also writes in her native language and two others; son-in-law, Milan Petrovits, one of Pittsburgh's leading painters; a daughter, Mrs. Petrovits, who is an accomplished pianist and who sings, and a son, Ottmar Fuehrer, a sculptor and taxidermist. All members of the family speak German, Hungarian and English. They understand several others as well.

Mr. Fuehrer has just received his final papers making him a citizen of the United States. He has been living in Pittsburgh since shortly after the war, and likes it. He has a garden, a few dogs, his family—and memories of an adventurous and useful life.

"Hunting and Fishing in the Balkans," and "The Birds of Montenegro," are titles of two of his more noted books. The latter is in five volumes and describes scores of birds which he himself first discovered as native to Montenegro. He has hunted and fished in almost every country of the world and collected birds for Russian, English, Hungarian and other museums.

ARTIST WELL KNOWN

Mr. Petrovits is well known, through his pictures, to Pittsburghers, having exhibited many times in the Carnegie galleries. He is also favorably known in many other cities where his work has been shown.

His step-brother, Ansel Narray, is now one of Europe's most discussed painters, the Queen of Rumania and Mussolini being two of his patrons and owners of his art. He paints Hungarian scenes.

Ottmar Fuehrer is best known as a sculptor of animals, having exhibited here. He was graduated from the Vienna Sculptore School in 1920, where he was a pupil of Franz Darwig, noted animal sculptor.

FISHER TO URGE ROAD BILLS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 9.—The highway program of construction and finances is one of the biggest problems coming before the present session of the Legislature, according to Gov. Fisher. Next week will mark the introduction of the administration's bills for changes in the motor code and other departmental legislation. The question of highway financing also is expected to come to the fore during the week.

Gov. Fisher reiterated his previous declaration that the matter of increased revenue would be entirely up to the Legislature.

"The highway program is the most vital matter that will come before the Legislature for consideration," the Governor said. "There is more interest in highway subjects than any other.

"This is manifested by the many bills already introduced, adding mileage to the system, and the incessant hammering on the department and the Governor as well for improvements upon the unimproved portion of the present system. The attention of the Legislature has been called to some of the most pressing demands, such as rural aid, bridges, city streets and reconstruction of the earlier portions of the system which are breaking down under modern traffic.

"The whole subject involves large construction problems which will have to be dealt with in the last analysis by the Legislature."

TRAFFIC ESSAY PRIZES GIVEN

Cash prizes amounting to $800 and $450 in scholarships were awarded to school children who participated in the essay contest conducted by the Better Traffic Committee, at a meeting last night in Memorial Hall. Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the education committee of the better traffic group presided and the awards were presented by President of Council James F. Malone.

The speakers were Frank L. Duggan, vice chairman of the traffic committee; the Rev. Paul E. Campbell, head of the parochial schools; Dr. R. M. Sherrard of the city schools; Director James M. Clark of the Public Safety Department; the Rev. Father M. A. Hehir, of Duquesne University, Dean A. W. Tarbell of the Carnegie Institute of Technology and Prof. L. W. McIntyre of the University of Pittsburgh.

High School Debate Winners Announced

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 9.—Washington High School's affirmative and negative teams won in the first round of the annual county high school round robin debate, over Trinity High School teams. A Charleroi High affirmative team defeated Monongahela High. East Washington High's negative team beat Canonsburg High and Claysville's affirmative team won from Prosperity High.

BOYS OUT OF ONE PROM, BUT REIGN AT ANOTHER

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Feb. 9.—With a few young men curiously looking on from the balcony, 200 Waynesburg College co-eds staged their first "all girl" dance in the college gymnasium last night. Half the girls were dressed to represent men, wearing evening dress, military uniforms or sports clothes. Miss Hildur Mortenson, as a "boy," and Miss Mildred Rinehart led the grand march.

The girls say the dance was just a new idea. The college boys say it was staged as a disciplinary measure against them because they have been escorting non-college girls to college dances during the last few months. During the intermission, when the couples went for refreshment, the girls paid their share as well as the "boys."

Although it was said no trouble was expected from the college boys, the town police squad was on duty at the hall, augmented by several members of the Waynesburg volunteer fire department.

MEADVILLE, Pa., Feb. 9.—Man still is the stronger sex despite the many hard knocks he has received lately. This was proved at Allegheny College last night when most of the men attended the annual junior "prom" in informal attire. Earlier in the week the co-eds served notice on the men that unless they donned formal evening dress it would be a girlless "prom."

With the "prom" fading, the girls wilted. They consented to "semi-formal" attire. Men who wished to wear full-dress and had it, wore it. Those who didn't wore what they pleased. And the "prom" was a success.

Winner Gets No Car, Informs on Lottery

County detectives today will question two alleged agents for an automobile lottery in the Allegheny Valley district as a result of complaints made yesterday. M. C. Long, of 125 Virginia avenue, Aspinwall, is alleged to have drawn a lucky number calling for an automobile, but the car was refused him, detectives say. Long also will be interviewed by detectives.

SCIENTIST SQUEEZES GAS OUT OF IRON AND STEEL

People who live in wooden houses can always chop down a door or a partition to keep warm, but until now, ham and eggs could never be cooked with a leg of the kitchen range, nor was it possible for marooned motorists to run the "gasoline wagon" with a spare wheel or a set of fenders as fuel.

But now, when the fuel tank goes empty on the road, just remember there is enough gas soaked away in the car's iron and steel to run it for miles. A few old stove lids or grate shakers contain enough fuel to boil the morning coffee or fry the ham and eggs. The trick is to get it out.

A man in East Pittsburgh can do it. He is N. A. Ziegler, scientist in the Westinghouse Research Laboratories. Ziegler squeezes fuel gas out of iron and steel like water from a sponge.

An old Ford piston, for instance, gives up 33 times its own volume of fuel gas; wrought iron and steel in less amounts. This gas, which burns with a pale blue flame, can be used to operate a gas stove and, with proper carburetor adjustments, an automobile. A couple of cubic feet of cast iron gives enough gas to furnish about ten horsepower for twelve minutes.

While automobiles have usually been operated from liquid fuels, it will be remembered that during the war, motor cars in England and France were operated from gas in bags. Even now there are trucks running in Europe and South Africa, operating from a simular fuel gas made from coal in a little producer on the truck.

BETTER FOR MAGNETS

The iron from which Ziegler squeezes gas is different in appearance. It has a brilliant, lasting sheen, instead of the dull rusty surface common to cast iron. It is better for making magnets than ordinary iron. This is the principal value of Ziegler's work, the inventor thinks, since, at present, the cost of getting the gas is greater than its value as a fuel. Better iron for electrical machinery, however, is very important, since millions of pounds are used annually and cheaper and better electrical machinery, affects the public generally.

Ziegler uses a big high-frequency induction vacuum furnace for extracting gas from cast iron. The metal to be melted supplies its own heat for melting, and a powerful vacuum draws off the gasses that boil out. The furnace quickly melts the hardest steel, but will not burn the hand nor scorch a cigaret paper.

It is built of glass and as the gasses are drawn off, glows with a brilliant, soft blue light, believed to be the same in character as the Aurora Borealis, or Northern Lights.

Ziegler, Westinghouse Research Laboratories scientist, "squeezes" fuel gas from iron and steel. "Out of gas," he could get home on a set of fenders, if necessary.

Miss Smith contributed this frying pan in the laboratories to Ziegler's gas. He can make enough fuel from a stove leg to boil the morning coffee if his meter quits.

News of the Stage and Screen Told in Little Tales and Pictures

REGINALD DENNY MAY MAKE MODERN VERSION OF "HAMLET"

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

(Copyright, 1929, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 9.

RUMOR, without musik—Reginald Denny, dissatisfied with the nonsensical farces wished on him, will star in a Hollywood version of "Hamlet," nickers, blue shirt, screaming tie, pomaded pompadour, and two-minutes-to-get-from-studio-to-home expression.

The colony is being shaken by another cold-flu epidemic. Prevailing poor health among mortals ordinarily hale if not hearty resulted in this scribe tracking the cause to its lair. I believe I have succeeded without being overly personal. Yes—the lair is none other than, in many cases, the sound stage. Many a player working steadily on a S. S. contracted a wretched cold that usually climaxed in flu.

Reginald Denny.

Laura LaPlante.

The sound stages are just that. They are illuminated by noiseless but wretchedly hot incandescent lights. These lights absorb all the oxygen. The players breathe stale, rather poisonous air. There is no ventilation, or so little it may be discounted. The result of all this is poor health, weakening of resistance, and miserable languidness.

Need Fresh Air On Sound Stages

UNLESS all producers devote time and money to installing satisfactory ventilation plants on sound stages, as a number are doing, talking pictures will wreck havoc among the players.

Howard Greer, fashion expert, says: Picture stars, like the world at large, are interested in dance marathons. Betty Compson stood on the side-lines of the marathon at Ocean Park the other afternoon wearing a two-toned sports costume of camel's hair jersey. The jumper was a combination Nile and almond green, put together in jig-saw pattern, one sleeve of the lighter tone, and the other of the dark. The skirt, flat in back and pleated across the front, was of dark green.

Monte Blue Has Unique Dagger

DAVY LEE, four-year-old Warner actor, received a letter from a tot in Worcester, Mass., named Florence Ray, saying she liked him so much she had prevailed upon her mother to name her new baby brother after him. And is Davy proud? On Monte Blue's dressing room table is a shuddery looking weapon. It was given to him while he was in the South Sea Isles. 'Tis a cannibal's idea of humor and protection, being a dagger made from the shin bone of some ill-fated soul. Cedric Gibbons' younger brother, Elliott, is confined to a New York hospital suffering from scarletfever... Tallulah Bankhead, a product of the U. S. A., but an animated delight to London, comes honeymooning to Hollywood soon with her new husband. Did some one say something?... Laura LaPlante traipsing across the Universal lot to the "Show Boat" sound stage wearing one of those old-fashioned voile dresses . . . and—that's all!

TUNES, MIRTH DANCE IN BILLS

Vincent Lawrence's comedy, "The Other Man," with William Boyd, Edna Hibbard, Pat O'Brien and others, will be the attraction in the Nixon next week, opening Monday evening. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Jack Osterman, will be one of the headliners on the two-a-day Keith-Albee-Orpheum vaudeville program in the Davis next week, his act being "Glorifying the American Boy." Irene Franklin will be another headliner.

Arthur Hammerstein's musical comedy success, "Rose Marie," will be seen in the Alvin all next week. Virginia Fox and Paul Donah are in the leading singing roles. The score, written by Rudolf Friml and Herbert Stothart, includes "Rose Marie," and the "Indian Love Call." A novelty is a dance by a large chorus fantastically arrayed as totem poles. In the cast are Mira Nirska, Peggy Pates, Daisy Gibson, Houston Richards, Charles Meakins, Ross Gibson, Sano Marco, Russell Griswold and others.

RUSSIAN DANCERS COME

Beginning Monday in the Pitt, the Isadore Duncan Dancers will appear for a week in programs having a background of Schubert and Chopin music. Irma Duncan heads this dancing group, which includes "Little Tamara," a child of 13.

In the Stanley next week, the feature will be "The Last Warning," a mystery melodrama with dialogue and sound. It features Laura LaPlante. It is a screen adapatation of the play of that name by Thomas Fallon which was based on the Wadsworth Camp novel.

"The Flying Fleet," starring Ramon Navarro, will be the screen attraction in the Penn next week. It is a story of the United States Naval air force. Teddy Joyce and the Penn Stage Band will be seen on the stage in "Beauty Shop Blues."

TALKING VERSION NOW

The more gripping scenes of "The Bellamy Trial," which will be seen and heard in Loew's Aldine next week, are entirely in dialogue. This photoplay is not the silent version already seen here. Leatrice Joy is featured in the cast.

"The Shopworn Angel," co-starring Gary Cooper and Nancy Carroll, is booked for showing in the Enright, East Liberty, opening today.

Vilma Banky stars alone for the first time in "The Awakening," opening in the Regent today. She formerly was teamed with Ronald Colman. Walter Byron is her leading man.

Kitty Madison, star of "Jazztime Revue," burlesque, coming to the Academy, Sunday midnight, formerly was of the vaudeville team of Kitty and Dolly Madison.

MEXICANS IN ACT

In the Sheridan Square, 10 motorcycle police from the City of Mexico will be seen on the stage, the first half of next week. The Vitaphone talking screen feature will be "Captain Lash" with Claire Windsor and Victor McLaglen.

The Photophone, sound feature in the Harris Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, will be "The Shady Lady" with Phyllis Haver and Louis Wolheim. Vaudeville acts will be headed by Alexander Santos Review.

TWO MOVIE STARS :-: DRESS UP :-: ONE GOES RIDING

Clara Bow garbs herself in the vivid costume of a wandering gypsy.

Marion Davies does a Paul Revere in this novel 1920 model of a Hollywood motor car. The ride is all part of a sequence in "The Five O'Clock Girl," Marion's new picture, which is based on the musical comedy by that name. Joel MacRea handles the wheel.

MUSIC

Carnegie Music Hall

PROGRAM.

Sonata, No. 14 ..... Mozart
Allegro.
Adagio.
Allegretto.
(a) Sonata, D Minor ..... Scarlatti
(b) Sonata, C Major ..... Scarlatti
Carnaval ..... Schumann
(a) Nocturne.
(b) Valse.
(c) Ballade ..... Chopin
(a) Moment Musical ..... Rachmaninoff
(b) Liebesfreud ..... Kreisler-Rachmaninoff

Sergei Rachmaninoff gave one of the smartest piano recitals in years at Carnegie Music Hall last night. There was never a dull note from the opening Mozart to the dying chord of his popular prelude, which came as his last encore, and which he plays differently each time, possibly to confuse the music teachers.

Before the music began we had memories of a Mozart "Marche alla Turca" played several years ago, and we feared the worst for Mozart. Contrary to all expectations, Rachmaninoff honored both the tempo and tone of the sonata, played it in strictest style and cleared the somewhat stale music atmosphere of the auditorium for brighter things. The Scarlatti sonatas were remarkable for their brittle clarity, especially in the embellishments, the C Major being the truer in imitating the original instrument for which they were written.

Standpatters will wrangle about the tempo of many pages in Schumann's "Carnaval," although there were moments of extreme agitation each sentimental and impulsive creature of Schumann's fancy stood out vividly, and the defiant march at the close was a brilliant display of pianism. Rachmaninoff might have been playing Til Eulenspiegel at this "Carnaval," for not in many years have these characters come so gayly to life.

In both the Chopin nocturne and valse there was a tone of mockery. The player might have been speaking to the sentimentalists. In the ballade this pessimism disappeared entirely and the playing was an interpretation of the "great Chopin." The pianist's own "Moment Musical" was an impassioned fragment in characteristic idiom, and his paraphrase of Kreisler's "Liebesfreud" was a cynically daring and amusing composition.

The program was undisturbed by encores until the end. Another arrangement of a Kreisler favorite, the "Liebesfied," was tuneful, and then the C sharp Minor Prelude sent everyone away quite satisfied.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Many Composers In Heinroth Program

Dr. Charles Heinroth will give an organ recital in the Carnegie Music Hall at 8 o'clock tonight and one at 4 o'clock tomorrow. His program will include the Allegretto from the Seventh Symphony by Beethoven.

The program also will present the Overture to "Fingal's Cave," Mendelssohn; Petit Poucet ("Hop o' My Thumb"), Ravel; Organ Concerto, No. 10, in D Minor, Handel; Deux Prieres, Alkan-Franck, and Passacaglia, Bach.

The program tomorrow afternoon will be as follows: Overture to "Poet and Peasant," Suppe; Barcarolle, Tschaikowsky; selections from Symphony No. 5, "From the New World," Dvorak; Angel Scene from "Hansel and Gretel," Humperdinck; Offertoire de Ste. Cecile, in F Minor, Batiste; Gavotte in B Minor, Bach, and Finale from First Sonata, in F Major, Mendelssohn.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A CHIC MODEL FOR DAYTIME WEAR.

Tweed or wool crepe may be selected for this design. It is also good for Canton crepe or moire. Revers facings outline the small V of the neck. The right front overlaps the left front, and closes on a lengthwise line to the top of a group of plaits which add distinctive grace and comfortable fullness. The close-fitting sleeve is finished with a small shaped cuff. A narrow belt holds the dress with slight blousing.

The pattern for this desirable style is cut in six sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. To make a 38-inch size will require 5¾ yards of 39-inch material together with ¾-yard of contrasting material for facing at neck, and on belt and cuffs. The width of the dress at the lower edge with plait fullness extended is 1¾ yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

MAYOR KLINE STRONG FOR MOVIES

Those who regard the movie as being of trivial consequences, if there be such anymore, find no supporter in Mayor Charles H. Kline. His Honor finds the movie a relaxation and a genuine moral force. In fact, he sees so much that is good on the screen and so little that is bad, that it appears the movies could find in him an advocate and counsel of high prominence should they suddenly be called upon to choose a successor to Will Hays. Anyway, his own words permit no doubt that the executive head of the City of Pittsburgh is a real film fan.

"In the development of America's social, moral, educational and economic life," Mayor Kline said, "motion pictures are a wholesome and stimulating agency.

"I have been deeply impressed and much pleased with the rapid development of the cinema. Their effect on the stream of American life has put new good blood into the veins, and though the world may never be without its croakers, there is much to be said on the side of the moral uplift of the pictures, and little to be critized on the reverse side.

MORAL FORCE EVIDENT

"The moral stimulus of motion pictures is becoming more and more evident each day and their educational value is now universally recognized by the ablest men and women to whom we entrust the mental development of our young. Moreover, business men today recognize the value of the screen as the salesman for all forms of American merchandise, particularly in foreign lands, where the human salesman rarely finds his way.

"One may travel to distant climes and yet see little of the real life of alien lands, but the movies are taking us into the very heart of the world and letting us hear, as well as see, what is going on among people of whom we have known but little. Indeed I have recently heard and seen at the same time, through the medium of the screen and its marvelous talking hand-maiden, the world's greatest leaders, the King of England, the King of Spain, the mastodonic Mussolini, and the scintillant Bernard Shaw.

SEEING THE WORLD

"Even the children now-a-days are intimately acquainted with Japan, China, Egypt, France, Germany, England, South America, and that now much-in-the-news land, Afghanistan.

"The stress of modern life demands that all of us have access to recreation in some readily assimilable form. I am constantly impressed with the fact that motion pictures furnish this without deviating from insistence on those moral laws which regulate the world in spite of all that the cynics and would-be scoffers may say regarding the inevitability of reward for good and certain punishment for evil. As a lawyer and former jurist, as well as in my capacity as mayor of Pittsburgh, I regard with satisfaction the tendency of the movies to teach that the criminal is always caught, and that the traveler on the primrose path finds no goal but trouble and misfortune. If the literature we read and the legitimate plays we see held as strictly to this formula, there would be less tendency among the younger generation to tempt Providence and burn the candle at both ends."

Successor to Pastor Auto Victim Chosen

NEWCOMERSTOWN, O., Feb. 9.—The Rev. T. J. Roby, of Shady Bend, former pastor here and in Denison, has accepted the pastorate of the United Brethren Church here, succeeding the late Rev. W. W. Franks, 50, who with his wife, was killed last December 11, when their automobile collided with a train.

Tomorrow Hospital Day in Greene Co.

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Feb. 9.—Hospital Day will be observed in Greene county tomorrow, when a score of prominent Waynesburg business and professional men will speak at various churches throughout in behalf of a drive for funds now under way for the new Greene County Memorial Hospital.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR: FAMOUS AVIATORS SPEAK TONIGHT

DAMROSCH EXPERIMENTS WITH RADIO ORCHESTRA

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

ONLY the absence of the immortal Lindbergh will mar the radio celebration for famous fliers tonight in Grand Central Palace, New York. Almost every aviator who has achieved fame in the last few years will come before the microphone. Capt. Hawks, Amelia Earhart, the crew of the "Question Mark" and a gallery of others will be heard in Pittsburgh through WJAS at 10:30 p. m.

Here's an experiment but it's bound to be successful!

Walter Damrosch has selected certain instruments for the General Electric Symphony because they have an affinity for microphone presentation. He will utilize his radio experience in the placement of instruments, so that the music they play may be as effective in the home as it would be in an acoustically perfect concert hall. His program looks good, too, with Beethoven, Grieg and Schubert as headliners. WCAE at 9 p. m.

PIRATES AT TORONTO

No hockey at Duquesne Garden tonight, but fans may follow the Pirates just the same. Tune in CFCA, 357 meters, at 9 o'clock for the game with the Maplelefs.

Since Pittsburghers have come to regard WEAF and WJZ as "local stations," the Phil Spitalny dinner music from the Hotel Pennsylvania at 7 o'clock has become quite popular. Spitalny's program tonight includes "Anything Your Heart Desires," "Do You, Don't You, Love Me?" and "When You Said Goodnight, Did You Mean Goodbye?"

Edwin Franko Goldman's Band at 8 p. m. through KDKA will offer a varied program, including "Barcarolle" from "Tales of Hoffman," a burlesque on Bial's "The Baby" and a selection from Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore."

The night would not be complete without KQV's run of late dance music. The program begins a little early this evening with the Bachelors, Hawaiian ensemble, appearing at 10 o'clock, followed by such well-known orchestras as the Roseland, Dewey Bergman and Tracy-Brown. And as usual the whole thing winds up at 12:30 a. m. with the Webster Club.

STRAUSS OVERTURE

The overture to the Strauss opera "Die Fledermaus," with its ingratiating waltz themes, will open the Slumber Music from WJZ, WBL at 11 p. m. "Lullaby" and a selection from Victor Herbert's "Serenade" will be other numbers.

Edward R. Howard, of 137 Dixon boulevard, Uniontown, who logged 500 stations last year and has 268 to his list this year, has suggested that listeners stay up from Saturday night at 11 until 4 or 5 the next morning for real surprises in DX.

Well, we'll help the fun along by suggesting WHK, 216 meters, Cleveland, at 2 a. m. tomorrow in a special International Distance Test.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Social Set Makes Dash To Get Away From Slush and Cold

IF THIS keeps up we will have a completely deserted city within a short time. Apparently, there is a concerted desire to get away from the whims of the weather man, who can't seem to make up his mind whether to freeze us or just ruin dispositions by making us wade through slush. And it doesn't seem to matter which direction these folks take, so long as it is away from Pittsburgh.

I believe I hinted before that California seems to be gaining more and more importance as a winter resort for our social group. Of course, there are lots of folks who have gone there every winter for years, but it does appear to be attracting more than its usual quota this season. The Uriah W. Tinkers, of South Dallas avenue, have been out in La Jolla for some time, you know. And now I hear that their daughter, Mrs. Paul Sexton Hardy, of Edgerton avenue, who was Eleanore Tinker, you remember, is taking her small daughter, Carol, and leaving tomorrow to spend some time with the Tinkers. Mr. Hardy is planning to join them a little later, I understand.

Dr. and Mrs. William W. Lermann, of the Park Mansions, are also going out to California and they are leaving tomorrow, too. They plan to make Palm Springs their headquarters for some time.

Not so far away from home, but still away from the city are Mrs. Samuel Alfred McClung and her son, Alfred, of Murrayhill avenue. They are spending some time at the Traymore, in Atlantic City, and at the same hotel are the William Sage Dalzells, of Kentucky avenue.

Also in the East are Mrs. Edward D. Gilmore and David M. Gilmore, of Sewickley. They are stopping at the Weylin Hotel, in New York.

* * *

BUT to get back to California again, I hear that Mrs. Daniel M. Clemson gave a luncheon out in Pasadena on Monday afternoon with three of her Pittsburgh friends, Mrs. William N. Frew, Mrs. Franklin Robinson and Mrs. James H. Lockhart, as her guests of honor. The party was given in the Hotel Huntington, the guests being seated at a table arranged in the form of a holow square and decorated with spring flowers in shades of yellow. After luncheon, Mrs. Clemson took her guests to the ballroom which had been divided by a flower-covered fence and changed into a lounge suggestive of the Orient. Here a program of Japanese music and dances was presented by Mme. Yasoyo-Kineya and seven-year-old Sachiko Tashiro, dancers, accompanied by Miss Yamato and Mrs. Miyoshi. Miss Setsuko Goh, who sponsored the dancers, explained the symbolism of the numbers.

Mrs. G. Harton Singer, Jr., Mrs. Harvey Norton Van Voorhis, Mrs. J. Herbert Hostetter, Mrs. Birney McMechen, Mrs. Pitt Heasley and Mrs. Charles A. Rook were among the local folks who were at the luncheon.

THE Junior League is planning to give still another performance of its marionette show, "Bobby Jones: His Voyage." This will be held next Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the parish house of the Church of the Ascension for the public school children. And perhaps there will be other performance, since the League wants all the schools to have a chance to see it.

The performance set for Friday, which I told you about before, will be given at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the parish house, you remember. And did I tell you before that the ticket committee includes Mrs. Derwin Donnelly, Mrs. Thomas M. Jones, III.; Mrs. Felix B. Snowdon and Mrs. Herbert M. May?

* * *

THE two performances to be given next week by the German Grand Opera Company in Syria Mosque is going to attract some of our society folks, it seems, but because of the early rising of the curtain there will be little or no entertaining before the opera. Mme. Johanna Gadski will sing Brunhilde in "Die Walkure" Monday night, you know, and on Wednesday night, "Tristan and Isolde" will be sung.

Mrs. Charles D. Armstrong, Mrs. William Reed Thompson, Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Mrs. Henry V. Blaxter, Mrs. Frank F. Brooks, Mrs. Harvey Childs, Mrs. F. W. Winter, Mrs. Joseph Dilworth, Mrs. T. J. Gillespie, Mrs. Frank W. Jarvis, Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, Mrs. C. D. Marshall, Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh, Mrs. George D. Macbeth, Mrs. H. H. McClintic, Mrs. W. Edgar Reed, Mrs. J. Hanson Rose and Mrs. J. H. Reed are included among the number planning to attend.

* * *

THE Women's Auxiliary to the Western Pennsylvania Retail Druggists' Association of Allegheny County will hold a dinner February 21 in McCreery's. Mrs. F. M. Wadsworth is chairman of the committee on arrangements; Mrs. B. P. Smith, of entertainment, and Mrs. J. D. Scholl, tickets.

* * *

THE annual banquet of the Pittsburgh Alumni Club of Geneva College will be held Friday night in the assembly room of the Fort Pitt Hotel. A special program has been arranged. The committee in charge includes Mrs. W. L. C. Samson, vice president of the club, as chairman; Mrs. Thomas Ward, Miss Eleanor Johnstone, secretary of the Club; Dr. S. C. Milligan and Floyd Carson.

* * *

A MUSICAL comedy, "In Old Louisiana," will be presented Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the Gladstone School auditorium, Hazelwood avenue, by Joppa Chapter No. 57, Order of the Eastern Star. Mrs. Lena Schlag is general chairman.

* * *

TRIUMPH CHAPTER No. 136, O. E. S., will hold its monthly novelty card party Tuesday afternoon in Oppenheim-Collins' auditorium. Mrs. Amelia Engelhardt is in charge.

* * *

NEXT Saturday is the date chosen by Miss Anna Louise Stephany, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis F. Stephany, of Olympia place, Squirrel Hill, for her marriage to Rollo Evans Venn, of Wichita, Kan., and Los Angeles.

* * *

THE Moredolphton Camp directors will hold a dinner dance and card party Wednesday night in the Roosevelt Hotel. H. R. Nieman is in charge of reservations.

* * *

THE engagement of Miss Dorothy M. Campbell, of Chartiers avenue, niece of the late Dr. Charles L. Campbell, to Eldon M. Cady, of Clinton Falls, Minn., was announced today at a bridge luncheon given by her cousins, Mrs. J. L. Campbell and Mrs. J. F. Landis. An early summer wedding is planned.

* * *

MISS ELIZABETH PAINTER, of Carnegie, gave a farewell party Wednesday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Fleischauer, of Mt. Oliver, who are leaving soon to make their home in New York. There were games and dancing.

* * *

COURT DUQUESNE, No. 659, Catholic Daughters of America, is holding a luncheon and card party this afternoon in the William Penn Hotel. Mrs. John Murray and Mrs. Clara A. Herman are hostesses.

League Here Holds Drama Week Tea

NATIONAL DRAMA WEEK reached the peag of its celebration in Pittsburgh yesterday when the local center of the Drama League gave a tea in Kaufmann's that was attended by more than 100 guests. Miss Vanda E. Kerst, chairman for the tea, received with Miss Elizabeth Howe, Mrs. T. C. Clifford and Mrs. Albert Pettit and were assisted informally by the other officers and the supporting members, while as aides there were some of the younger league members and students from Pennsylvania College for Women. Mrs. Alvan W. Sherrill and Mrs. George H. Tabor presided at the charmingly decorated tea table.

The only program feature of the afternoon was a condensation of Hamlet which Mr. and Mrs. E. Martin Browne, of Carnegie Institute of Technology, gave and in which they have included most of the important scenes of the play.

* * *

PITTSBURGH club women will be interested in news that comes from the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women telling of the appointment of Mrs. Richard B. Perry as chairman of juniors for this district. Mrs. Perry is a past president of the Dormont New Century Club and the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs and has been prominent in club work for a number of years. She succeeds Mrs. Irwin L. Gillespie, who has resigned.

* * *

MRS. JOHN F. SIPPEL, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, former president general of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, are members of the George Washington Bi-centennial Commission, which has just selected the Potomac River route for the 200-foot memorial highway from the Virginia end of the Arlington Memorial Bridge to Mt. Vernon.

* * *

MRS. R. TEMPLETON SMITH, county league chairman, will be the guest of honor at a meeting of the Twenty-seventh Ward League of Women Voters in the John Morrow School on Monday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock. The teachers from the school have been invited to meet Mrs. Smith.

Mrs. G. W. Krusey will be leader for the meeting of the Twentieth Ward League on Monday evening, in Langley High School. A business session will be held after which committee reports will be given and Mrs. Elizabeth B. Motz will speak.

The Twenty-sixth Ward will hold its monthly meeting in the American Legion Hall, Perrysville avenue, on Tuesday afternoon. There will be a practical demonstration of "registration and election laws" by Mrs. Motz.

* * *

"PIONEER WOMEN OF THE WEST," "The Unexplored Portion of the United States" and "The Roosevelt Dam" were the subjects of papers presented yesterday by the Woman's Club of Carnegie, when the members met in the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. C. C. Fulton was leader, Miss Goldie Viele, hostess, and the papers were presented by Mrs. D. W. Hopper, Mrs. Jean McBride and Mrs. E. G. Fink. Karl Emerson Williams contributed readings, and the music was by Mrs. Don Conrad, soprano, accompanied by Mrs. W. W. Andrews.

* * *

ON WEDNESDAY, from 2 until 5 o'clock the Hill Top Circle No. 3, Ladies Aid Society of the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church, will have its musicale tea. Mrs. Marie Hohmeyer Longmore and Mrs. R. C. Daugherty are arranging the program.

* * *

HILDA W. SMITH, director of the Affiliated Summer Schools for Women in Industry at Bryn Mawr, Barnard and the University of Wisconsin, is announced as speaker for the Social Workers' Club meeting Tuesday in the Plaza Restaurant.

* * *

THE Oliver Club will have its February meeting Monday evening in the home of Mrs. R. D. Cook, Goe avenue, North Side. Cards will follow the business session.

* * *

THE program for the East Liberty Woman's Club luncheon and reception in the Food Craft Shop on Monday will be given by Miss Celia Namara and Edgar Zellman, vocalists. Mrs. Helen Thomas will accompany Miss Namara, who will give her songs in Spanish costume. Miss Lillian Bardonner will play for Mr. Zellman.

* * *

PROHIBITION enforcement, unemployment and criminality and disarmament, as "The Most Important Problems Facing America Today," were discussed yesterday before the Woman's Club, of Sheraden, by Mrs. C. M. McKee, Mrs. Charles Banker and Mrs. A. C. Ackenheil. The members met in the home of Mrs. George K. Cowan, of Minton street. Mrs. W. P. Cunningham assisting the hostess. The club voted to create a flower fund from which flowers are to be sent in the case of death in a member's family.

* * *

THE February meeting of the Allegheny County Woman's Temperance Union will be held Tuesday in the Methodist Building chapel.

Bradford Man Killed As Car Bumps Truck

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—F. Ward Wagner, of Bradford, Pa., was killed near West View, N. Y., early today, when his automobile crashed head on into a truck which had been stopped on a grade to be equipped with chains. The man was believed to have been driving from Buffalo, N. Y., to West View at the time. Little could be learned about him here, though it was established that he was a member of the Buffalo Athletic Club.

Thieves Take Guns Out of Parked Car

T. F. Cody, sporting goods salesman, staying at the Fort Pitt Hotel, reported to police that thieves broke a window in his automobile, which was parked in Eighth street, and stole three revolvers, two shotguns, baseball gloves and other goods last night.

SPEED PLANNED IN DRUG RING INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Additional support has piled up in congress for the proposed sweeping investigation of the narcotic traffic.

Both in the Senate and House, leaders yesterday indorsed the project as a necessary step in the offensive against the dope rings which are flooding and poisoning the country with illicit drugs.

Early action is to be sought on the resolution of inquiry sponsored by Senator Wheeler (D) of Montana, and Representative LaGuardia, (R) of New York.

'SHAME AND CRIME'

"It's a shame and a crime that our great country should allow itself to become one of the world's largest traffickers in narcotic drugs," said Representative Howard, (D) of Nebraska. "The people of the nation do not realize how widespread drug addiction is. If they knew, they would favor the most drastic measures to suppress the evil.

"To my mind a fiend who will give dope to his fellowman is no better than a man who will strike a dagger into the heart of his neighbor.

"It is the duty of Congress to act at once to protect the thousands of boys and girls from the ravages of drugs."

NORRIS URGES SPEED

Senator Norris, (R), of Nebraska, declared the investigating committee, to be composed of two members of the Senate and three of the house, should be organized immediately.

"It's a most laudable purpose," he added.

"I heartily favor an inquiry to determine what means should be taken to curb the illegal traffic in habit forming drugs and put our house in order," commented Senator Sheppard, (D) of Texas.

Senator Overman, (D) of North Carolina, pointed out that a fact-finding survey is essential before Congress can legislate wisely in smashing the evil.

MANY SENATORS JOIN

"The people should be thoroughly acquainted with the extensive use of narcotics, especially among younger persons," he explained.

NATIONAL FLAG CONTEST STIMULATES PATRIOTISM

therefore, well that the fires of patriotism be kept burning and that our national ideals and traditions be emphasized and kept before our people.

"The work which the United States Flag Association is doing is most commendable and deserves the support of every good and loyal citizen. I am glad to be among those who are pledged to its program of patriotism.

"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

U. S. GLORY TAUGHT

For several years now the flag association has been working to instill anew in the hearts of America a love of homeland and an understanding of the ideals by which our nation lives. In doing this it has caused our glowing history to live once more and our sacred traditions to shine through a fog of careless forgetfulness with their true brilliant meaning.

And now through this nation-wide flag contest the association is undertaking a new and even greater work—a program through which it will turn the hearts and minds of thousands of the nation's school children to a consideration of the achievements of their nation, the ideals of their forefathers and the golden future of their homeland.

For the flag contest, nation-wide in its scope and offering as it does an opportunity of participation to every boy and girl between the ages of 14 and 18, is designed primarily to bring home to America's youth the full glory of its great birthright of equality and security.

ALL 14 to 18 ELIGIBLE

Every boy and girl in high school or its equivalent in private or parochial school, or between the ages of 14 and 18 and not in high school or a graduate of high school, is eligible to enter this competition.

Scores of valuable prizes are to be given. Chief of these are the two grand prizes — trips around the world—one for the winning boy and one for the winning girl. All expenses of the winners will be paid on these trips, and they will also be given a complete wardrobe and $200 for spending money.

Runners-up in the national finals in which the round-the-world winners are selected will be taken on a patriotic pilgrimage to points of historical interest in and near Washington and Philadelphia. Thirty-six youngsters—18 boys and 18 girls—with their chaperones, will take this trip free.

MEDALS FOR MANY

These 36 and the round-the-world winners will receive previously as prizes for winning the contests in their respective regions, the trips to Washington with all expenses paid, to compete in the national finals.

Regional runners-up will receive medals carrying with them life memberships in the Order of the Flag, the Legion of Honor of the United States Flag Association, this being the organization headed by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. Col. Lindbergh was awarded life membership in the Order of the Flag for his achievement in being the first man to complete a non-stop crossing of the Atlantic Ocean by air.

District runners-up will receive certificates of honorable mention, showing that they have won a rating of excellence by their work in the race. Schools from which the regional winners come will also receive suitable awards, which can be exhibited among their trophies.

GET READY!

The great travel prizes offered to the winners of this contest constitute in themselves a liberal education, and the entire contest will serve to stimulate the study of American national history and institutions to an extent never before equaled in any school.

Details of the contest and a list of prizes already have been published in this newspaper and will be repeated tomorrow. Watch tomorrow's paper and be ready to start answering the first questions that appear next Monday.

Fire Engine House Sale Called Off

Council has requested B. L. Succop, city sales agent, to withdraw an advertisement offering for sale No. 15 Fire Engine House, Penn avenue, near Fourteenth street. The building is to be used in negotiations between the city and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for the improvement of Penn avenue in connection with the company's terminal extensions. Buildings approved for sale are No. 6 Police Station, Frankstown avenue, and No. 8 Fire Engine House, Highland avenue.

Royal Guests on Way To Prince's Wedding

NAPLES, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Several members of European royalty arrived here on the steamer Esperia from Genoa, en route to the wedding of Prince Christopher, of Greece, and Princess Francoise De Guise at Palermo Monday. Included in the party were Christian Frederick, Crown Prince of Denmark; Prince and Princess Viggo, of Denmark; the Duchess of Orleans and several relatives of the bridegroom.

RODGERS FIELD TO BE KEPT

Plans are being made by the Aero Club of Pittsburgh to retain Rodgers field, the present city-county airport, as an emergency field after the new county airport is completed, it was announced last night at the club's quarterly business meeting. The meeting was held in the William Penn Hotel and President Robert A. Laedlein was in charge.

New downtown club rooms will be opened in the William Penn Hotel in the near future, the club decided, this marking the adoption of a progressive program of expansion to be carried out this year. It was unanimously decided to grant special concession in the matter of dues to men under 25 who hold Department of Commerce licenses or rating issued by recognized aeronautical authorities.

Transportation Men Of P. R. R. to Banquet

Congressman John D. Cooper, of Youngstown, O., and Dr. Edward J. Cattell, of Philadelphia, will be the principal speakers tonight at the eighth annual banquet of the transportation department, Central division of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The banquet will be held in the William Penn Hotel and approximately 1,200 persons are expected to attend. W. R. Cox will be toastmaster.

"I'M THE GUY" ANNOUNCES LAST PRIZE-WINNER LIST

This is I'M THE GUY'S farewell to Pittsburgh and to the many thousands of I'M THE GUY fans who sent in the cleverest wisecracks he has ever seen to his popular contest.

I'M THE GUY has been receiving wise cracks for over a month from ardent fans. He and his assistants have worked into the night judging each day's replies. Now I'M THE GUY is off for much-needed rest.

I'M THE GUY thanks everyone who took such an interest in his contest. While it was impossible to give a prize to everyone, he had a hard time picking the daily winners, and there were hundreds of letters received that missed winning only by the narrowest margin.

Today I'M THE GUY announces the final winners in his contest. Here they are:

$5 PRIZE WINNER

"I'm the Guy who gets weak from eing my weakness." Won by es R. Snyder, 901 Standard Life ling.

...NZE WINNERS

...the Guy who sat on a pin to get the Point." By Randolph Gothhart, Meade street, Boston, Pa.

"I'm the Guy who knows it's wiser to keep money in your sock than speculate in stock." By Mrs. J. Balkey, 32 High street, Etna.

"I'm the Guy that made announcements strong by putting cement in it." By Austin Riley, 1227 Morningside avenue.

"I'm the Guy whose ring turned green in spring; who made a great sum in the summertime and who lost it all in the fall, but who is bound to win in the winter." By Miss Mary M. Sauers, Muth street, North Side.

"I'm the Guy who tried to take the B out of blame, but it made my excuse sound lame." By Miss Nellie Kennedy, 310 Caldwell avenue, Wilmerding.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

STUMPED

By EFFIE DELNORD

MRS. KANE was dummy and the flood gates of her dammed up conversation opened wide, inconsiderate of the fact that Noel Marsh was playing a doubled hand.

Noel hesitated between the queen and the ace wishing Mrs. Kane would stop describing her tour through the Thousand Islands, but Mrs. Kane tripped blithely on down into New York state. Noel played the ace and immediately regretted it. Mrs. Kane had arrived in the Catskills.

"You know how beautiful the road is to Grand View Inn, Noel? And isn't the Inn gorgeous?"

Noel, who had never been in the Catskills, shook her head.

"You don't like it? Why, Noel Marsh, really! And we were so sorry to have missed you? Think of it, girls, they left the Inn the day before, wasn't that hard luck?"

Noel opened her mouth to deny that she and her husband had ever put a foot in the Catskills, but she was glad afterwards that she had not spoken.

"We saw your name in the register," you know, Mrs. Kane rushed on to explain.

But Ella Lane gave Noel an odd glance out of her sharp eyes. "You never mentioned that you had been in the Catskills with Emmet," she said.

Noel dropped her vanity case. "There's Lou Murray—I must speak to her about the committee meeting." And escaped.

Home in the seclusion of her bedroom, slipping out of her flowered georgette, Noel remembered. "It was three weeks ago. Emmet said he had to go to Albany on business. He went to that Inn with another woman."

She shivered. It was ridiculous. Emmet wasn't the kind of a husband who did such things! He was home every evening, well, except the night the directors met!

"It's a mistake, that's all. Emmet and I are the happiest couple alive. We've never had a serious quarrel, well—maybe that misunderstanding with his mother, but Emmet was entirely on my side. He's just an adorable old quiet dear." A little more quiet, perhaps, since that wretched fareup with his mother. Noel frowned. Had he really slipped a bit away from her since that time? "Nonsense! I'm imagining things!" And she upset a bottle of perfume, the one Daisy Norris had given her last Christmas.

Hastily Noel grabbed a towel and began to mop up the spreading liquid. The strong scent sickened her, or was it the thought that three weeks ago Daisy Norris had been away from the office? Noel had called up to see if Daisy could reach Emmet, he had forgotten his brief case, and someone had informed her that Miss Norris had left for a week's vacation.

Noel flung the wet towel away from her and dropped into a chair, frightened. Curiously it had been indirectly about Daisy Norris that she had quarreled with her mother-in-law. Daisy, a friend of the family, suddenly in reduced circumstances through the death of her father, must be taken care of. Emmet's mother had insisted Emmet employ her as his secretary. Noel had resented her mother-in-law choosing her husband's stenographer, especially when she saw Daisy's exquisite blonde beauty.

Noel heard Emmet's step in the hall. She jumped up nervously.

All through dinner she kept thinking, "Now, I'll ask him." But somehow the question stuck in her throat. "Before that quarrel with his mother I would have blurted the whole thing out at once. We've drifted apart. A shadow between us—Daisy."

Emmet cleared his throat. "I have to see a customer in Albany this week end, Noel. I'll be home for Monday night dinner." And pushed back his chair without even looking at her.

That night Noel watched the shadows from the electric light of the street flicker on the wall. Certain in the morning when Emmet kissed her goodby she did not open her eyes.

"I can't face this thing alone—I must speak to somebody," she thought as she gulped down a cup of coffee. "If I had a mother or a brother! I can't go to a friend. There's only one person—that's Emmet's mother."

She had come to that conclusion at 3 a. m., but had struggled against it. "Why not? Isn't that her line?" She smiled bitterly. "Her celebrated column in the newspaper, straightening out love affairs and domestic tangles. Her lectures—well, here will be a problem right on her own doorstep! No, I won't go to her! I won't! That superior manner—maybe it comes from her public speaking. I don't know what to do!" And she let her head fall on the crummy tablecloth.

It was a curious fact that Noel had always planned to have the most ideal relations with her future mother-in-law. But she had pictured a cosy old lady with a weakness for knitting and tea, not the splendidly preserved matron whose life was filled with appointments and reporters. She knew that Emmet was tremendously proud of her mother and it made Noel feel peculiarly inferior.

As the morning advanced and Noel was sure Emmet was on the train to Albany, she began to feel the effects of a sleepless night. "I'll make sure," she decided, and telephoned Emmet's office. No, they told her, Miss Norris had left yesterday for a week's stay at her uncle's farm.

A half an hour later Noel stood before the apartment house where her mother-in-law made her home. "She'll help me," Noel whispered to herself. "I think she always wanted to—if I had let her. She'll settle that Daisy Norris. I'll not give up Emmet—no—oh, it isn't true, it can't be true!"

The telephone operator appraised the nervous, pale face with experienced eyes. "Sorry, so many come, Mrs. Marsh sailed for Europe."

Noel considered for the briefest moment, then she asked clearly, "Have you a time-table for the Catskills?"

Coming up to the Grand View Inn Noel spied Emmet sitting at a table on the terrace with somebody who was hidden by a waiter. With her head high and her knees shaking Noel marched straight toward her husband. He turned and, seeing her, rose, very red in the face. His evident great embarrassment gave Noel strength, she quickened her steps, steeling herself for the ordeal. The waiter moved away, and the next moment she saw the majestic figure of her mother-in-law coming toward her, both hands outstretched.

A little later Mrs. Emmet Marsh, Sr., was explaining, "The only way I can get a few weeks' peace from everything is to simply leave word that I've sailed for Europe. You were a clever little girl to suspect I was up here, Noel."

"I wanted to come along the other time," Noel ignored her husband's pleading look, "but Emmet doesn't understand hints."

"Neither did his father," laughed the older woman, "but still we women keep on hinting. I've tried to suggest to Emmet since a year that I wanted to see you, Noel."

How nice and tactful she was to load the whole thing off on Emmet's shoulders! Noel could have hugged her. "I tried to get him at the office and even Daisy was away."

"Yes, her beau lives up there near her uncle's. She's going to be married in November."

"We must give her a gorgeous wedding present," glowed Noel and feeling a gentle pressure on her knee slipped her fingers into her husband's hand.

The February Furniture Sale Furnishes Four Rooms for $1166.25

One of the interesting features of the February Sale this year is a series of room groupings, showing at what moderate cost a small house or apartment can be attractively furnished by taking advantage of the sale values.

Furniture for four rooms is shown—a charming bedroom, a comfortable living room, an attractive dining room, and a gay and cheerful sunroom such as many modern apartments enjoy—at a total cost of $1166.25.

A Pointer for Young Couples

This is a quick way to show young folks planning new homes, how to estimate furniture costs. For this is a practical example, with the furniture set up in a room background, of what the sale can do for them, or for anyone who plans furnishing or re-furnishing.

Decorating Advice

If you are looking for furniture with no definite idea of what will best fill your needs, call upon our decorating service. Frequently, a decorator can solve your difficulties in most satisfactory manner. There is, of course, no obligation attached to such service.

Furniture for Four Rooms

Living Room

A two-piece suite in semi-tuxedo style, upholstered in mohair, and finely tailored $240.00
Secretary desk, Governor Winthrop style $72.00
Desk chair, Windsor style, rush seat $8.50
Pull-up chair, damask cover, fluted legs and stretcher, only $33.50
End table of mahogany, with book trough $10.75
Coffee table $28.50
Console table, flap-top style $37.50
Mirror $25.00

Sunroom

Three-piece round reed suite in fairway green, shaded and decorated with red; cretonne covered spring cushions $125.00
Table to match $17.50

Dining Room

Ten-piece suite in Hepplewhite style; of mahogany and gumwood; with reeded posts. Extension table, china closet, server, 60-inch buffet (a particularly good size for a small house) and six chairs with tapestry covered seats $265.00

Bedroom

Four-piece suite in William and Mary design; of walnut and gumwood, with beautifully figured walnut $245.00
Bench $15.00
Night-table $18.50

Deferred Payment Plan

A plan that proves advantageous to many, because it permits them to pay out of income for furniture, while enjoying the use of it. A reasonable first payment is sufficient to deliver the furniture. The remainder may be spread over a number of months.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Fatted Calf

CONSIDER the Woman-Hater, my Daughter.

* * *

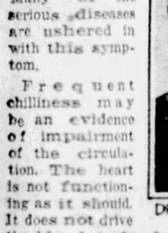
For, verily, it is with good reason that he hateth women. Yea, with an hundred good reasons!

* * *

He hateth the women who "butt in" on his games—and despiseth the woman who is too stupid to play a good game.

* * *

He hateth the modern woman because she is self-sufficient and wilful and forward—and scorneth the old-fashioned woman, because she is supine and clinging and ineffectual.



HELEN ROWLAND

* * *

He hateth the highbrow damsel who talketh politics and eugenics and Freudian philosophy, and disdaineth the dumbbell who talketh nothing but "drivel."

* * *

He hateth the "prude" who cannot be easily kissed—and despiseth the "petter" who demandeth to be kissed.

* * *

He hateth one woman because she is too capricious to be trusted—and another woman because she is too dependable to be interesting

* * *

He hateth one woman because she is a clothes-mannikin and a human fashion-plate—and another woman because her dowdiness humiliateth his pride and her frumpiness offendeth his taste.

* * *

He hateth the flattering and tactful woman because she "insulteth his intelligence"—and the frank and candid damsel because she woundeth his vanity.

* * *

He hateth women who smoke cigarets—and women who use perfumed lipsticks.

* * *

Women who pursue him—and women who ignore him. Women who powder their noses in public—and women with shiny noses. Women who do not "understand" him—and women who see through him!

* * *

Yea, verily, verily, when a man electeth to become a Woman-Hater, he shall find no lack of justification. Yet, alas, a day shall come when his will shall weaken and his pose shall drop from him and behold, a fluffy dumbbell with a weak chin and a baby-stare and a chiffon soul shall find him EASY! For the heart of a Don Juan is encased in defenses.

* * *

But the heart of a "Perfect Woman Hater" is the softest spot on earth!

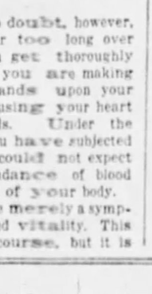
How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Something Wrong if You're Always Cold

FREQUENTLY I am asked to explain the significance of chilliness, or the actual chill which is frequently the first symptom of influenza or some other disease. Many of the serious diseases are ushered in with this symptom.



DR. COPELAND

Frequent chilliness may be an evidence of impairment of the circulation. The heart is not functioning as it should. It does not drive the blood in forceful streams to every part of the body. This in turn comes from some impairment of the bodily vigor.

There are many things that lower human vitality. Overwork, loss of sleep, need of a vacation, domestic discord, lack of human interest, as well as the many infections to which the body is subject, may be the cause for lowered vitality of which chilliness is a symptom.

It is tremendously important that everyone should eat regularly. Everybody should take enough of the nourishing foods which are essential to good health and red blood.

Lots of times you feel down and out when the whole trouble is you are hungry. Don't you know how cross you feel and how impossible life seems about a quarter of seven in the evening. You may not realize that you are hungry, but a cup of hot broth, followed by a sensible meal, will give you a new outlook on life.

This fact does not excuse a wild orgy of eating. To crowd your stomach with a tremendous meal is always inexcusible. Certainly that sort of a meal is not called for when you have the feeling I have described.

There can be no doubt, however, that if you linger too long over your work, if you get thoroughly worn out with it, you are making unreasonable demands upon your body. You are abusing your heart and blood vessels. Under the strain to which you have subjected your organs, you could not expect to have an abundance of blood sent to every part of your body.

Chilliness may be merely a symptom of that lowered vitality. This is temporary, of course, but it is very real in its production of symptoms of discomfort.

The blood needs to be replenished and purified all the time. It must have an abundance of oxygen in order to do its work of healing and building.

To have the blood in proper condition, oxygen is essential. To this end deep breathing is of vital importance. You should stand in front of the window several times a day and take a multitude of long, deep breaths. This will do much to supply your blood with elements essential to health and you will be surprised to find how deep and rapid breathing will warm the body and remove the feeling of chilliness.

Don't get into your head the idea that every time you feel chilly you are going to be sick. This is not the case. But unless there are very obvious reasons why you are chilly, it is because you are neglecting some of the things which make for good circulation and good health.

Answers to Health Queries

C. W.—Q. What can be done for holes or enlarged pores left by pimples?

A. Try alternate application of hot and cold compresses for five or ten minutes twice daily. Avoid the excessive use of powder and cold cream which tends to clog the pores and thus coarsen the grain of the skin.

* * *

R.—Q. What causes granulated eyelids?

A. This condition is due to infection. Bathe with a mild solution of warm boracic acid several times a day and apply 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment at night. Also have the eyes tested to see if glasses are needed.

* * *

C. F. N. Q.—Can the sight be restored in an eye where the nerve is dead? The sense of feeling in the eye is O. K.

A.—If the nerve has been destroyed there is no possibility of restoring the sight.

* * *

C. S. Q.—I have had an ulcerated throat and a very sore tongue for the past two months. What do you advise?

A.—It would be advisable for you to consult a throat specialist for a condition of two months' standing.

SWEET SIXTEEN

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

POETS have sung all through the ages of the beauty that belongs solely to "Sweet Sixteen." She has ever been an inspiration in her wistful beauty, as one poet so aptly expresses it, "standing with reluctant feet where the brook and river meet."

And there are as many phases of this "Sweet Sixteen" as there are girls in the world. Once we pictured her as something so childlike that it was a shame to introduce her to the harshness of the world. True, then she did have curls hanging down her back and there was no rouge nor powder nor lipstick to mar the natural loveliness of her girlish appeal. But I wonder!

Sweet Sixteen nowadays is as smartly gotten up and sophisticated as her grandmother. More so, in fact, for she does and says what grandmother never would have dared say. She dresses in a manner that would scandalize some of her Puritan ancestors, and as for make-up! It's hard to know exactly what she really does look like beneath the mask of rouge and powder and shaded eyes.

Some say she's a lot of things that I know she isn't. She's simply following the dictates of fashion, as Sixteen has ever done, and 'way deep in her heart there's as much sweetness, as much innocence, as much yearning for Love and Love's happiness as any girl in the seventeenth century dared have. And I defy any one to say that she isn't exactly the girl her grandmother was, only in modern dress.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Who Is Mysterious Janet Rawdon?

AT the revelation that Hugh Grantland was sending a monthly allowance to Jack Leslie to keep him indefinitely in Australia, I was for the moment incapable of speech or motion. It was only another instance of the tender, careful guard which this man for years had kept over my life, removing from my pathway anything which spelled danger to me or to anyone dear to me.

Like him also was the stipulation he had made to Lillian that I was not to know of this disposition of Leslie unless it became absolutely necessary. Never during the years of our friendship had Hugh Grantland been other than self-effacing in what I know is a deep and hopeless love for me. Only once had he broken over the barrier of restraint which he had set upon himself. As vividly as though the words were now being spoken I could hear his jealous fear of my work with Philip Veritzen pouring out in the raucous tempestuous cry—

"If you leave your husband you are coming to me, not to any other man."

With the consciousness that Lillian and Katherine were carefully keeping their eyes averted from me, I pushed the image of Hugh Grantland and the sound of his voice back into the hold of my memory and battened down the hatches. But I was miserably conscious that my voice was tremulous when I made my first comment upon Lillian's surprising bit of news.

"But if this Janet Rawdon doesn't come from Jack Leslie, who can she be?"

"A blackmailer on her own account, don't you think?" Katherine rejoined. "It was almost too much to hope that no one would ever suspect Mary was the masked dancer in that cabaret. True, nobody save Jack Leslie and Noel ever saw her face, and she's never been in that environment since, but—the long arm of Old Man Coincidence, my dears."

Lillian nodded. "It's the only plausible theory," she said slowly—"and yet—I can't make it jibe, someway. In the first place I don't believe any woman capable of blackmail could invent the name 'Janet Rawdon.' It's too—too—oh, you know what I mean as well as I do."

"And of course a blackmailer wouldn't use her own name," Katherine said.

"Of course, not," Lillian said absently, and the next second she was miles removed from us. With her elbows on her knees and her chin cupped in her hands in her old familiar attitude, her trained intelligence was roaming over the wide stretches of her experience, trying to find some key to the problem confronting us.

With a comprehending glance at each other Katherine and I sat silent, waiting, for never has either of us disturbed Lillian when she was thus engaged. But when at last she lifted her head and sank back in her chair, we saw that she had failed in her quest. There was no subtle little air of triumph, no gleam in her eyes, no flush in her cheek, such as always mark a mental victory with her.

"I can't get it, girls," she said. "I may as well tell you that what sent me into the ether was the idea that I've heard the name Janet Rawdon and have some peculiar association connected with it, something in which Mary figures. It's all hazy—and I simply can't make it click anywhere. What I'd give for that photographic memory of yours, Madge! Even if you don't recognize a face or name or number at first, it always pokes its head out of its particular filing case before you're through with the need of it. But I'm a dud."

"Yes, Katrina and I have noticed that," I said drily. "But Lillian, are you sure that it was Mary with whom you associate the name of this mysterious woman? I've been with Mary more than you have, and I never heard the name before in my life."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Another Locale

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am an unmarried girl, away from home and live alone in a hotel. Occasionally my friends visit me there, and I am wondering if it is bad taste to have a photograph of myself in my room? BROWN EYES.

IT would be better taste to have your photograph taken in the photographer's studio. Hotel rooms do not make the most artistic of backgrounds, usually, and besides having your photograph taken in this locale doesn't seem to have much point. In fact, I think that it has everything against it.

It Doesn't Matter

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly tell me which is proper—a new bride to invite her sisters-in-law to her home for dinner first, or should the in-laws invite the newlyweds to their home for dinner first? O. R.

EITHER is correct. If the sisters-in-law have been very friendly and gracious in their pre-wedding plans for the bride and groom, the bride will undoubtedly wish to extend as soon as possible the hospitality of her home. Or, if the sisters-in-law are very hospitable people, they will probably plan to have the newly-married couple dine with them. There is, especially in these family relationships, no reason in the world to stand on ceremony or wonder about precedence.

The Cake Fork

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When serving refreshments—say coffee and cake—and knives are not necessary, should the fork for eating the cake be placed on the left of the plate, or on the right in place of the knife, together with the spoon? I. C.

THERE is no definite rule about this, but I think that it is more convenient if the fork for the cake is placed on the left of the plate. Also, it gives a better balance, if there is to be a spoon on the other side of the plate.

Contribute Yourself

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When attending church with a young man, is it proper to contribute to the collection? Should the young lady accept money from her friend for the collection? R. E.

THE contribution of each should be made separately. For the man to give the money for the girl's contribution defeats the object of the collection. We can't give "by proxy" in this way. This is too easy.

Horoscopes

Sunday, February 10

SUNDAY'S horoscope accents things of church and charities, but gives a melancholy cast to things mystical. It would be well not to get distorted views or an erratic outlook on psychic or mystical matters. There will be a leaning toward occult and metaphysical investigation.

Those whose birthday it is may have a fairly active and prosperous year, especially if the energies be turned to travel, invention and dealing in all those things utilizing nature's finer forces. But be on guard against fraud and duplicity.

A child born on this day may have skill and inventive ideas in the realm of the finer forces. But it may be undermined or deceived by subtlety and craft.

A good man's prayers will from the deepest dungeon climb Heaven's height and bring a blessing down.
—Joanna Baillie.

Monday, February 11

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for an exceedingly fortuitous state of affairs. There will be expansion and progress in many directions, with the energies under high stimulus and aimed toward high successful goals. New agreements and pleasant affiliations are foreseen. It is a time for pushing.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a very progressive and prosperous year, with all things expanding and thriving. New associations and pleasant contacts personally are promised.

A child born on this day may be endowed with many qualities and graces making for a successful and happy life

Surer to prosper than prosperity could have assured us.—Milton.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

FOR awhile the Court House at Fifth avenue and Grant street (and Ross street, too, for that matter) was without the Ten Commandments. This is not to be taken in a sinister way. The Ten Commandments were removed from the Court House during alterations. For a time the tablet faced north on Grant street—in the direction of the business and financial districts, which was not bad at all. Then the tablet was moved to face the City-County Building, which might have been significant, too, but now it faces Wylie avenue. Through the various transfers not a commandment was broken, which is quite a tribute to the workmen involved, all things considered.

Pittsburgh will burst forth with another art exhibit in the famous Carnegie galleries. This time the Associated Artists, that is artists of this district, will hang their paintings for the benefit of the laymen interested in art. Some care will be taken that the unfortunate error of the last notable exhibition does not recur. A great effort will be made to hang all the paintings right end up. No difficulty is anticipated in this connection unless one of the local boys comes through with the portrait of a cucumber.

IN THE lobby of the Frick Building is a marble bust of the late Henry Clay Frick, whose early history was associated with the rise of the town. Over the bust is a large opalescent (I like that one) glass window, done by John La Farge, one of the most distinguished of American artists.

The woman who made the Frick bust is Malvina Hoffman, a leading woman sculptor, and an exhibition of her sculpture will be seen in the Department of Fine Arts, Carnegie Institute, February 15 and continuing through to March 5.

* * *

That sculpture does not interest more people is one of the mysteries to the gentlemen at the Institute. They point out that every small girl who makes mud pies, every boy who makes a snowman, is an embryonic sculptor, naturally inclined that way until nature is defeated with growth and maturity.

I must look into this and prepare a paper on the whole subject for the London Mercury or for the Leningrad Mercurivitch.

* * *

WHEN you pass the Court House, by the way, on the Grant street side, observe the entrances. They are termed by men who know as the real stuff in artistry. Stanley Rousn, the county architect, who had charge of this work, consulted all of Richardson's (the man who designed the Court House)) drawings before he undertook alterations.

The iron grill doors are especially attractive. They were made by Samuel Yellin, of Philadelphia, who is probably the best ironworker in the United States. A few years ago Mr. Yellin, whose work now graces our Court House, was awarded the $10,000 Edward W. Bok prize awarded annually to a distinguished Philadelphian.

There isn't a prominent place in town where something unusual—either for what the artists call vulgar or what they deem fine—is not interesting. Let an artist interpret what he is driving at and he's one of the most interesting fellows in the world. Walk through town with a man leaning to the fine arts and he can spin you many a yarn, many a choice bit of gossip.

CRASH TIES TROLLEY TRAFFIC

Trolley traffic was tied up for 20 minutes in Lincoln avenue, near Fremont street, Bellevue, shortly after 8 o'clock this morning by a head-on collision of a milk truck and an outbound Avalon trolley car.

The front wheel of a truck owned by the Otto Milk Company, 2403 Smallman street, broke, according to the police report, and the truck crashed into the cab of the trolley, bound in the opposite direction.

E. M. Forenk, of 1738 Maplewood avenue, driver of the truck, was thrown to the street and suffered lacerations of his face and head. The trolley cab was slightly damaged.

FIRE STARTED BY CHILDREN

M. E. MISSION BOARD ASKS CHARTER

Application for a charter has been filed in Common Pleas Court by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Protestant Church. Headquarters are to be maintained in Pittsburgh subject to the general conference of the denomination. Publication and extension of the gospel in North America and foreign countries is set forth as the purpose of the organization. It is to be governed by a board comprising 10 men and 10 women, whose names are affixed to the application. Fifteen of these reside in various sections of the United States, while the following five live in Allegheny county: J. C. Broomfield, president of the General Conference, Dormont; Mrs. Frances McRoberts, Glenshaw; J. W. Hawley, Mrs. A. G. Liebert and Mrs. Cordelia J. Lewis, Pittsburgh. A hearing on the charter application will be held on March 2.

SCOUTS HOSTS TO 'DADS'

More than 200 people attended the Father and Son banquet held by Mt. Lebanon Troop No. 230, Boy Scouts of America, in the dining room of the Mt. Lebanon Presbyterian Church, Washington and Castle Shannon roads, last night. A. T. Benson, chairman of Allegheny County Boy Scout Council, was the principal speaker. W. A. Wayman was the chairman of the banquet committee. The dinner was served by the Scout mothers.

The effect of a sylvan scout camp was brought into the dining room. The boys erected a tent and with trees and leaves, reproduced a wood-like haunt. The campfire was one of the features and the boys sang around its glow.

ADELAIDE M. HAGGERTY

GUM IS REWARD FOR LIBRARIAN

Miss Adelaide M. Haggerty, Carnegie branch librarian at the Chamber of Commerce, who every week answers hundreds of questions about Pittsburgh and its resources, seldom hears a "thank you." But the spell was broken by Max Kostick, high school student, of 20 Seaver street, Roxbury, Mass.

In Kostick's letter, received today, asking for information about Pittsburgh, the boy wrote: "I am enclosing a 2-cent stamp for reply and a stick of chewing gum for your trouble." Miss Haggerty has retained the stick of gum with the letter as a souvenir.

Wife's Affections Grow Cold, Asks Divorce

After 31 years of married life, Dr. Charles P. Geddes, 60, Wilkinsburg, testified before Judge Frank P. Patterson in Divorce Court that his wife, Maude A. Geddes, 55, deserted him, declaring that her love had grown cold and that she will never return. The doctor advanced no reason for her leaving other than that her mother and brother had moved to Los Angeles, Cal., and that she wanted to go there and join them. They were married in 1895 and the desertion took place in 1926. Dr. Geddes practiced in Cleveland and Washington, Pa., before coming to Pittsburgh in 1914.

COMMISSION WORKS ON OUTLINE

Pittsburgh's metropolitan charter, in the making for presentation to the Pennsylvania Legislature, has been compared by some of the members of the Metropolitan District Commission to a deck of cards. It is being written by sections regardless of their sequence in the completed documents, and just now these units of Greater Pittsburgh's Magna Charta are thoroughly shuffled.

The city manager idea has crept in, and this is admitted to indicate a delay in the game.

MANY SUGGESTIONS

As a result of the call for suggestions the commission has been overwhelmed by communications and written sections sent in by the public.

Joseph T. Miller, chairman of the commission, said for obvious reasons he could not talk about the progress in the work except through formal public statements. However, the shuffling is going on. It looks as if the game will be called in Harrisburg during the week of February 18.

Another of the frequent executive meetings will be held late today to discuss the charter draft generally, Mr. Miller said. Such a meeting was held yesterday in the directors' room of the First National Bank Building.

LEADERS "SHUFFLING"

An extraordinary shuffle was said to have been given the metropolitan deck after the conference Wednesday between members of the commission and W. L. Mellon. Joseph G. Armstrong, members of City Council and other political leaders.

Members of the commission are non-committal on the city manager section. It was hinted that it would be "lost" when the big stakes are up. The proposition to unify police and firemen throughout the district is a deuce card with its edge thumbed, so everybody now declares. Boroughs and townships have been promised autonomy and the volunteer firemen have been assured of monatomy. District police will have entire independence, it is said.

Daughter Hurt in Crash, Asks $25,000

Because of what may prove to have been permanent injuries to her hips, back and head, Attorney Clarence Burleigh, Jr., 925 North Negley avenue, has had suit filed in Common Pleas Court for $25,000 damages against the Stoecklein Baking Company, whose truck wrecked the Burleigh limousine in Baum boulevard May 21, 1928. He charges the truck swerved into the automobile and, besides doing $2,000 damage to it, caused the severe injuries to his daughter, Florence.

Man Leaves Wife One-Third of Estate

His wife, Mrs. Brigid H. Boyle, receives one-third of an $11,000 estate and the balance is left to eight children in the will of William C. Boyle, of 1045 Flemmington avenue, which has been filed for probate. Mrs. Catherine Reilly, one of the daughters, was named administrator.

ASKS $40,000 IN TANK BLAST

Claiming that permanent injury to his thyroid gland has resulted from hurts received when the Equitable Gas Company tanks in Reedsdale street blew up November 14, 1927, Herman Blank, foreman in the nearby Union Paint Company plant, which was wrecked by the explosion, has filed suit in Common Pleas Court for $40,000 damages against the Equitable Gas Company and the Riter-Conley Company.

Injured in Trolley Crash, Asks $15,000

As a result of a street car running away on Amity street, Homestead, November 20, 1928, and crashing into another car, injuring many persons, suit has been filed in Common Pleas Court against the Pittsburgh Railways Company for $15,000 damages by Freda Abraham, a minor, through her father, Alex Abraham, of Homestead Park. The child suffered injuries to the head, back and legs.

BELLEFIELD BOYS STICK TO SUN-TELEGRAPH JOBS

A testimonial to the satisfaction that Sun-Telegraph newsboys find in their work and pay may be found in the fact that H. C. Courtwright, agent for this paper in the Bellefield district, has not had to hire a new boy for more than a year.

The lads who receive their Sun-Telegraphs from Mr. Courtwright are all employed in delivering the paper to subscribers. For a few hours' work after school they get from $1.75 to $12 a week.

The papers are distributed to them from in front of No. 14 Fire Engine House on Neville street. The firemen stationed there, incidentally, are all Sun-Telegraph readers.

One boy, William Kramer, has been with Mr. Courtwright for nine years, and his brother, Jack Kramer, for four years. Two other boys have been in Mr. Courtwright's employ for seven years, and two others for five years.

The Sun-Telegraph is the only Pittsburgh evening or Sunday paper they handle.

Patronesses Named For Card Function

NEWSBOYS WHO DELIVER THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH IN THE BELLEFIELD DISTRICT

PIONEER POLICE STATION WILL GO UNDER HAMMER

Frankstown Avenue Police Station, for 40 years the patrol headquarters for the East End district, together with No. 8 Engine Company and No. 15 Engine Company headquarters are to go on the block Valentine Day, when the highest bidders will assume ownership of them.

Notices of public sales were posted on the three buildings today. The notices are signed by Director James M. Clark, of the public safety department, and by Bertram L. Succop, city sales agent.

Work on the new building at Euclid and Broad streets, which will house the combined East End police and fire headquarters, has almost been completed. It was said that the structure would be ready for occupancy May 1.

Frankstown Avenue Station was built in 1888—when J. O. Brown was the public safety director; Gamble Weir the superintendent of police, and Harry Whitehouse the inspector of the Second District, which then was included in the East End.

Pittsburgh had but six stations then—the Downtown, Hill, Lawrenceville, East End and South Side stations, with a police bureau of 271 persons. East End had a force of 28 men—the inspector, captain, two lieutenants, two sergeants, 14 patrolmen, three special officers, four wagonmen and a matron.

Today East End has an inspector, captain, five lieutenants, three sergeants, six emergency men, 112 regular patrolmen and 25 sub-patrolmen. At the close of the year 1889, the inspector's annual reports showed that 838 arrests had been made. Last year's arrests totaled almost 6,000.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.

Every day now, stock market "faw down go boom," so today no session.

Called off on account of the "flu". And a funny thing, it was on account of the "flu".

If it had "flu" up, they wouldn't have had to call it off on account of the "flu", but as it "flu" downward, why everybody has to "flu" around today and get ready for not only the "flu" Monday but maybe pneumonia.

Yours, WILL.

WHO'S GUILTY??? CAN YOU SOLVE THIS DETECTIVE STORY?

A Study in Red, White and Green—Second Prize Story

Cash Awards for Four Best Solutions of Baffling Murder Mystery

By EVELYN JOHNSON AND GRETTA PALMER

BEHIND the cab's delusive heated sign, Detective Wilkins looked benignly down at his spats and raised his hand to adjust the white bow-tie, whose obliquity was a constant rebuke to the company it was forced to keep. From the dull lapels of the rented dinner coat to his heavy brogues, Wilkins' costume proclaimed him one of New York's finest rather than the brilliant society criminal he hoped to appear.

It was the ex-patrolman's first essay into what he believed to be high life, and, as the cab drew up in front of the Fifth avenue hotel, he got out with a noticeable hauteur and walked hurriedly past the hotel detective in the lobby to the elevators.

Andrews would be expecting him—Andrews, known as one of the wiliest of the gentlemen who accommodate modern buccaneers in the disposal of their booty. One could no more refer to him as a fence than to the Armour family as butchers.

ANDREWS had eluded the police of four countries for 10 profitable years, and it was only by great good luck that Wilkins had made friends with him and discovered his identity.

The inspector, when he was told of this find by the breathless and exuberant young detective, had hesitated and finally decided to let him follow through the case to the end. After all an insignificant member of the staff would be less suspected than any of the better known detectives, and Wilkins' assignment was not too exigent.

If he could only convince Andrews of his good faith and sell him a few tempting and allegedly stolen jewels, a focus of underworld life would be cut off. Wilkins was given the chance.

AS the elevator shot upward through 18 strata of unattached ladies dressing for dinner, Wilkins wondered who it was that Andrews had asked him to meet; his wife, he had said, and a few friends, probably his partners.

Wilkins reviewed rapidly all that he had learned in detective school of the importance of the ear in identification and stepped jauntily out of the elevator. He need not have concerned himself—Andrew's guests were purely social and had no slight inkling of his career. Two eminently respectable stock brokers and their wives were seated about the effusive Andrews, highballs in hand, as Wilkins gave the perverse tie a final twist and entered the apartment.

He had hardly been introduced before the bell rang again and Andrews admitted a tall, handsome man, who greeted the guests distantly, with a sidelong glance at the detective's spats, but Wilkins did not notice. He glanced up, gulped and forgot to finish his quite apocryphal story of the time he had used a straight flush to break the bank of Monte Carlo.

"I WONDER if you will excuse Mr. Marsden and me for a moment," asked Andrews, "there's a bit of business—"

Andrews and the newcomer withdrew to a corner in plain view of the divan of which Wilkins was seated next to Allan Crosby, whose humor any good mediaevalist would have diagnosed as choleric. Crosby was very wroth over something in the football world, Wilkins never knew just what, for he was closely watching the pair in the corner—Andrews and the newcomer, a glimpse of whose ears had made his heart thump painfully.

The man called Marsden was a notorious thief and smuggler of jewels, whose face had been memorized by class after class of graduating detectives without the knowledge disturbing his leisurely migrations. No one had ever seen him in possession of a jewel illicitly acquired, and Wilkins was willing to suffer from astigmatism for the rest of his life, if concentrated watching now would catch the man in the act of selling a jewel to the notorious Andrews.

"I TELL you the ruling was all wrong," shouted the angry Mr. Crosby, "if Dartmouth's forward pass hadn't failed—"

The lady next to him wore a Mona Lisa expression of insincere attention, and wondered whether she dare buy a third fur coat. Mrs. Crosby was less stringent in her manners and frankly devoted herself to a serious flirtation with the scotch and soda.

No one saw that Wilkins had turned white and that the offending tie, by some barometrical intuition, had worked itself to an angle of 90 degrees. For he had just seen Marsden pass a large green stone covertly to Andrews, who examined it with a shielding hand held towards the room, nodded, and slipped it deep into the watch pocket of his evening trousers. The two then rose and sauntered towards the company.

ANDREWS looked about with an air of self-rebuke

"My dear Mrs. Crosby, you want a highball, and you too George. Here, Marsden, mix the drinks. I'll have to get some ice from the adjoining serving pantry. You'll find everything on that sideboard." And he pointed to a magnificent array of bottles, which ranged from the more prophylactic of native gins to an imposing line of squat bottles holding the slightly esoteric Benedictine and Creme de Menthe.

Marsden selected a glass for himself, poured out and passed drinks for the whole company, all of whom steered the safe middle course offered by the brothers Haig and Haig. Then with a supercilious disregard for the others he carried his drink to the radio and began the usual vain and turbulant efforts to get Chicago.

"Ice here, Harry," he called to Andrews when the latter returned and then relapsed into attention to his objectionable series of noise. Andrews smiled ruefully at his guests and suggested a game of roulette, in which Wilkins joined with an eager eye peeled for twitching wires leading to the pockets of his host.

IN this hope he was mistaken, but a far more dramatic development brought the game to a close. After a scant 20 minutes of alternate drinking and dialling, Marsden cried out in agony, reeled suddenly about, and collapsed to the floor.

Andrews rushed to the sideboard and poured out brandy for the sick man, while the others gathered about his prone form. A physician was hastily summoned and pronounced him dead. The symptoms of poisoning were so evident that even the house doctor insisted that the police be summoned.

When Wilkins' confreres arrived from the homicide bureau they greeted him joyfully as an eyewitness to the crime. Marsden's glass showed that the drink had contained several grains of cyanide of potassium, a lethal dose.

WELL, Wilkins could tell them how it got there. It also contained a piece of straw, but this they considered an insignificant factor.

Wilkins, in embarrassment, admitted that he was as baffled as they, but told them he had seen what he believed to be an emerald pass from Marsden to Andrews. Probably its acquisition without the formality of payment was the motive for the murder, if Andrews indeed was the criminal.

But the hotel waiter, who had been in the serving pantry when Andrews left the room, and had given him the ice from the electric refrigerator, said that he had had the suspect in full sight during the few minutes of his presence there and was sure he had concealed nothing about the premises, which testimony was later found to be true.

The emerald was not upon his person nor in any place about the room, which occurred to the detectives as a conceivable hiding place.

Two days later, however, it was sold by his agents for a considerable sum.

What did Andrews do with the emerald?

Solution of Yesterday's Story: "The Lady Killer"

OF all the characters in the house, Miss Schultz was the only one who combined a motive for the murder and the familiarity with the weapon used which might have dictated her choice of a razor blade. She had been jilted by Dr. French. Seamstresses generally use a safety razor blade for ripping seams. When Miss Schultz went down to plead with her beloved and he remained cold to her, she could not resist the weapon which reposed provocatively in her apron pocket. The two clerks used straight razors, as did the barber. The commercial artist had not the shadow of a motive for the deed.

Solution and Prize Winners of Last Week's "Two Eye-Witnesses"

SLADE'S story was absolutely truthful. The murderer was "Spider" Burroughs who had realized the opportunity to kill his father before the will was changed and throw the blame on someone else. As his mother was sick in the room adjoining his, he had very little difficulty in establishing an apparently good alibi. By plugging in a pair of head-phones into the jack used to convert a radio into an electrical phonograph, it is easy to speak through an ordinary pair of radio ear-phones and have it sound through the loud speaker very convincingly.

"Spider" hooked up his set and dropped the ear-phones out of the window so that they dangled by the window of the work shop immediately below. Then he tip-toed down and watched behind the curtain of the work-shop door, gun in hand, until Slade was ready to set off the flash-light. He fired at the same instant, but as a flash-light picture is instantaneous, and as light travels far faster than a bullet, the picture showed Mr. Burroughs a split second before the bullet hit him.

"Spider" leaped through the door the minute he had fired and knocked out the little photographer. He then rushed to the window and spoke through the ear-phones, knowing that the stock-reports were always given at about 3:15, and that besides his mother's statement, he would be further backed up by the clock in the picture taken a minute before.

He then dragged his unconscious victim over to the safe, opened it, set off another flash-light and tip-toed up-stairs, after wiping the finger-prints off the gun and laying it on the safe. He then walked into his mother's room, told her he was going to the gymnasium, and boldly went for the police. Of course he hauled up the ear-phones, replaced them, and turned off the radio while he was upstairs.

One reason why the photographer could not have done it, is that he had no reason for wiping the finger-prints off the gun, although the real murderer was forced to. Aside from that, his motive for murder was very slight.

The winners of cash awards for last week's prize story are as follows:

First prize of $10 won by Mrs. Edith Jones, 2769 Churchview avenue, Carrick.

A prize of $5 each won by Dom W. Bailey, 1134 Pennsylvania avenue, Monaca; Mrs. C. H. Ehrlinger, 926 Savannah avenue, Wilkinsburg, and Ethel Barnes, Millsboro, Pa.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer :-: By John Held, Jr.

I'LL PULL A FAINT RIGHT INTO HIS ARMS AND THEN HE WILL HAVE TO PROPOSE TO ME!
ODEAR, I'M FEELING QUEER!
HERE, GET INTO THIS COAT BEFORE YOU CATCH A DREADFUL COLD!
ODEAR I FEEL I AM GOING TO FAINT— !!!! AND ALL FOR NOTHING! BUMP!
GET AT IT, YOU LUBBERS! GET THAT DECK CLEANED UP!
AYE AYE SIR!

"My dear, this BASH WEALTHington may think he's a BIG SHOT with the FEMMES, but he's no GOOSEflesh to ME because I HONestly think he couldn't be RUder and I'm THORoughly inCENSED with him at this point, no less! I mean the way he ACted after I'd REScued myself from this dizzy LEAP into the DRINK from his YACHT, you'd have thought I looked like NOTHing HUman instead of which I looked like VEnus rising from the FOAM, my dear, but instead of taking me PASSionately in his ARMS and TENderly inQUIRing if I was all RIGHT and everything, the great oaf simply handed me his COAT and said to put it ON so's I wouldn't catch COLD, whereupon I resolved to FAINT in his ARMS at that point, my dear, but when I PULLED this dizzy SWOON the pipsqueak let me coLAPSE on the DECK with a SICKening THUD and then CASurally ordered ARab and NOIsy to fall TO and swab up the great WET space where I'd been DRIPping—can you BEAR it, my dear? REALly, I'm PRACticably ready to ROLL over and BUTter myself with IRE because what's the USE of trying to imPRESS anybody like that who's just the frightfully PRACtical type with no ROmance about them, my dear? ANYways, I certainly don't intend to make myself CHEAP by RUNning after the gink although I know LOADS of girls who WOULD, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

NANCY DEANE By Roy L. Foley

Nancy Sees Her Father for The First Time When He Is Dying

CHAPTER XXX.

IN NANCY'S own little room with its dotted Swiss curtains, in her own hard bed she saw, for the first time, the man they told her was her father.

Up the stairs in single file, the three of them had gone, Mrs. O'Day, leading, then Nancy, then Darry. Mrs. O'Day opened the door softly and one by one they entered to stand over the bed where Monty Deane, Jr., was lying, his eyes closed.

There was a single candle burning on a table beside the bed, and when the door opened, creating a draft, the flame sputtered, filling the room with grotesque moving shadows. To Nancy it seemed as though she was being led through a weird ritual.

Nancy knew death made people afraid. She had seen Julie Abbot die. Now her father was here, and he was dying, so Mud and Darry told her.

She looked down at him and wondered. What force was it that had brought Julie and Monty Deane together? What a different course their lives would have followed had they never met.

Had they never met, these two from such different stations in life, there would be no Nancy kneeling, now beside the bed of Monty Deane. Her father was breathing heavily. He seemed to be asleep. Mrs. O'Day's stubby forefinger was raised to her lips. Nancy looked up at her. What a saint she was, a plump saint with work-stained hands, a scolding saint who never, never would become reconciled to the failure of the delinquent Darry.

She studied Monty Deane. The white spread was pulled up close around his chin, accentuating the black and the white of his unshaven face. His head was dark, but his tousled hair, thin at the top, was shot with gray. He was thin, wasted looking. She was struck with the resemblance of the face on the pillow to the face of Caroline Glendenning-Deane. The mould of their mouths was identical. She imagined when he opened his eyes they would be as gray as his mother's, and she hoped they would be warmer and have a kinder look in them.

Ah well, she was not such a child that she didn't know that suffering changes the expression. She could see without telling that this man had suffered. "He's been laying just like that ever since mornin'," Darry whispered hoarsely. "The doctor says to let him be. There ain't nothing a body can do but let him be."

"Sh-s-s-s-s!"

Maggie O'Day, the work worn saint, gave such a sh-s-s-s that Darry jumped. He backed up before his advancing frowning wife, until he leaned against a picture. It crashed to the floor, the glass breaking into a hundred pieces.

Monty Deane's eyes opened and closed, then opened again. Nancy turned, her own eyes meeting his gray ones. He moved his hand to the edge of the bed, holding it there, as though he wanted her to take it.

She gave a little cry and fell to her knees. She put her own warm hand into his and his slim fingers closed over hers. Then he closed his eyes. She knelt there, it seemed for ages, with Mud and Darry standing silently behind her.

"Come, child. Come, he's sleeping." Mrs. O'Day whispered finally. She stooped over to lift the girl from her knees. "It's sleep he's needin' more than anything. Let's begone."

The long fingers had relaxed now and Nancy withdrew her hand without making a stir. The three of them left. At the door Nancy turned to look at the sleeping man. She shivered, the room was so still. So mysterious. So terrible!

Down in the kitchen, Muddy's kitchen that was her kingdom, Nancy heard the story of her father's return. Darry, in his meanderings about the depot had come upon him huddled up on a bench in the waiting room and warned him.

"You'd better not be settin' here or the station agent will be after you. Is it hungry ye are?"

At least that's how Darry repeated it to Nancy and Mrs. O'Day. For once Darry was the center of interest. He was the actor in this particular drama, and though Mrs. O'Day mumbled a good deal during his story, she did not interrupt him.

"An' what do you suppose he answered when I asts him was he hungry? He says—is there anybody you know around here by the name of O'Day?

"O'Day?" I says. "Was it O'Day you're askin' fer? Why, I'm O'Day, says I. David O'Day. Plasterer by trade (this was where Mrs. O'Day mumbled loudest) and it wouldn't be me you're lookin' fer now, might it? An' what did he do then but pull out this."

Darry fumbled in his pocket and pulled out a newspaper clipping so soiled and torn that it had become almost unreadable. It was a clipping from a Washington paper. How well Nancy knew it. It was the story of Julie Abbot's tragic death and of her relationship to Nancy. It was the complete story pried out of the O'Days by the persistent reporters at the time of Julie Abbots meeting with her accident—and death.

Nancy glanced at the clipping, begging that Darry continue. He was having one of the grandest moments he had experienced in years. Deliberately, and maddeningly slowly, he rubbed a palm across his cheek and mouth in an attitude of great thought, then put his thumbs under the straps of his suspenders, and smacked his lips.

"Hurry on now," said Mrs. O'Day, "out with the rest of your tale or I'll be taking the words out o' your mouth."

"Well, as I was sayin', he puts his hand in his pocket and pulls out that ther piece from the paper. It's David O'Day I'm lookin' for, he says, and I says, that's me, sir, and he says, you must be the man."

"Stop saying I says and he says, and get on with you." Mrs. O'Day whacked out at poor Darry, with a glowering look.

"Well, I says to him, I be David O'Day and he says, are you the man it mentions in this piece, and I says that I was. And then he says that he was Julie Abbot's man, but that he guessed she thought he was dead because they had separated a long time ago, and was there a baby like the paper said?

"An' I says there certainly was a baby, and if he was Julie Abbot's man he must a' been the rightful father of Julie Abbot's daughter. An' where is that daughter now, he asts, and suspicionin' him, I told him he would have to be provin' first what he was talkin' before I'd give him any information about any daughter.

"Well, sir, he had such a nice way o' talkin' about him, and I saw he was sick, so I says you'd better come up and talk it over with Ma, an' by golly he comes, an' he weren't in the house two minutes when he faints. That was yisterday. We calls the doctor, an' the doctor says put him right to bed, and here he is. Your Ma talked to him more and Ma says that he shore is your right father, if ever you had a father, 'cause he knows all about Julie Abbot, an' he says his name is Deane, but he ain't gone by that name for years now, 'cause his father put him out, an' he was proud, an' then he got goin' bad and served a term in jail, once, an' then he just drifted an' never came back at all.

"He was in Seattle when he gits a-hold of a paper from Washington. Now who'd a thought a paper like that would be gettin' so far from home. An' he sees this here piece, an' he beats his way here, and there he is now upstairs. An' the doctor says he thinks he's dying. Pneumony. Dope, too—"

He whispered the last, with his hand to his mouth, and gave a furtive look at Mrs. O'Day.

"Darry O'Day!"

Mrs. O'Day spoke his name with an emphasis that said plainly he had gone beyond his privileges. He had done the thing he shouldn't have done, just as he always did. How well Nancy knew what Mrs. O'Day's feelings were.

"Begone with ye now. I'll finish this tale," Mrs. O'Day said, and Darry heeded her advice without an answer.

"Oh, that one—," she said, and jerked her thumb after him. "Ye might know what he'd do, he's never done a thing right in his life. I shouldn't a-let him blab away so long."

Then, as though the truth were out now, and there was no use in trying to pretend what Darry had said wasn't true, Mrs. O'Day continued the story.

"Your father up there says he's had a hard time of it, transgressin' through life and leavin' his wife that way."

"What way, Muddy?"

"Why, he says that they had a quarrel in Chicago not long after they was put out of his pa's home in Pittsburgh. He says it was over another woman or somethin' and that there was a brawl in some restaurant, an' that he was arrested, an' that one thing was leadin' to another an' he up and left Julie, an' never seen her again."

"Muddy—what did Darry mean by dope?"

Mrs. O'Day raised her eyes and then, honestly, in her blunt way, for there were no frills of speech about Maggie O'Day, she said:

"The doctor says your pa's one of them dope addicts. That he's got to have morphine. He's been givin' it to him to quiet him or he'd be murderin' us. Your pa told the doctor that he was in a hospital takin' a cure, an' was just about broken off from it, and it's terrible, just terrible."

Mrs. O'Day ended up rather weakly, for her. She acted as though she had no resource in the face of a thing like this. It was the first time that Nancy had ever seen her when she wasn't ready to stand on her two feet, to honestly face, and to work and fight, if necessary, against anything that wasn't decent and clean and healthy.

At once Muddy O'Day seemed old to Nancy. She had never looked that way before. There was a grayness about her face where usually there was a flush of color. Nancy saw the tears start in her eyes.

In an instant Nancy was kneeling before her, her golden head buried in Muddy's lap. And they both cried unashamed.

Monty Deane, Jr., did not wake until almost noon the next day, Dr. Peabody, thin and tall, looking just the same as he did as long ago as Nancy could remember, was with him. After Mrs. O'Day had fed him some broth he seemed to improve greatly. He asked to see Nancy.

"My baby, my baby girl. Are you the girl who was here last night?" he asked.

The effort tired him and he closed his eyes. Mrs. O'Day let him rest a moment or two before she answered and then she told him the girl he had seen was his daughter, and she was nearly 19.

Mrs. O'Day left quietly and Nancy went close to the bedside. The dull depths of his eyes seemed to become bright.

"So you're my girl," he said, "my girl. How much you look like your mother. Kneel down here. I want to feel your hair."

Nancy knelt and he put out his hand, slowly, gently, until his fingers just touched her hair.

"It's gold hair, isn't it?" he said, "gold hair. Just like Julie's hair. You're like your mother, child. She was a lovely thing, your mother. I loved her, but we were not made for each other. We should never have met. I left your mother. I've suffered for it."

Nancy didn't know what to answer. This man, was he truly her father? She couldn't believe it just with the telling, and yet the very look of his own mother was stamped upon his thin face. She wondered if she should tell him that she had seen his own mother only yesterday afternoon, that she was doing some work for her.

He started to speak again.

"When I married your mother I brought her home to my father's house. I was only a boy then, impulsive and spoiled. I wanted to surprise my parents and I took Julie there—

"They told us to go. My father cursed us. He said he never wanted to see me again until I was in my coffin. He won't."

Cash Awards for Best Mystery Story Solutions

EVERY day the Sun-Telegraph will print a mystery story on this page. The correct solution, written by the authors, will appear the day following the publication of each story except the one printed on SATURDAY.

Each SATURDAY there will be printed an original, or PRIZE STORY, by the same authors, the solution of which is in a sealed envelope. Prizes will be paid only on stories appearing on that day. Everybody is invited to send in their solutions of the SATURDAY PRIZE STORY. For the best three solutions in point of accuracy, brevity, clarity and completeness, the following cash prizes will be awarded:

FIRST PRIZE.....$10.

Three prizes of $5 each for the next three.

Contestants for the PRIZE STORY AWARD will have from Saturday morning until the following THURSDAY night at 6 o'clock, to send in their solutions. Letters postmarked after that time cannot be accepted, as judges must be able to render their decision on the prize winners in time to make the following Saturday's editions, when the correct solution of the PRIZE STORY, along with the names of the winners, will be printed with another PRIZE STORY for you folks to tackle.

Address your solution to the Mystery Editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PITT READY FOR IRISH

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Petty Signs Contract — Gives Up Robin Fight — Corbett on Schmeling

Brooklyn After Moore — Vance Holdout Denied — Bratton Is Optimistic

JOCKEY SCARCITY ALARMS TURFMEN

THE confidence of Pittsburgh baseball fans that Pitcher Jess Petty would add himself to the list of signed Pirates in plenty of time to start with the advance guard for the Paso Robles training camp one week from next Monday night, regardless of the outcome of his financial debate with the Brooklyn club, was well founded. Though no announcement on the subject has come from Buccaneer headquarters, and President Barney Dreyfuss is adhering to his policy of saying nothing as to what players have or have enrolled for the 1929 campaign, it is learned from a reliable source in New York that Petty has signed his Pittsburgh contract.

Jess Petty.

The Bucs' new southpaw was unsuccessful in his efforts to have the Brooklyn club refund the sum of $1,155 that was deducted from his salary when he was fined and suspended last season. Petty says that Manager Wilbert Robinson promised to return the money and invited him to appear before the board of directors of the Brooklyn club at a meeting held last Tuesday. Jess went through his part of the arrangement, he reports, but says the directors never gave him a tumble, so he decided to waste no further time in that direction and penned his name on the pact that makes him a full-fledged Pirate.

ACCORDING to New York advices, Petty, who will be in Pittsburgh next week, and who will attend the sports writers' big dinner at the William Penn Hotel on Thursday night with his stage partner, Al Mamaux, waited outside the Dodger offices on Tuesday for four and a half hours.

"Then I was informed that I could not get my money back," the southpaw is quoted. "The manager of the Dodgers told me that he and one of the directors were willing to refund it, but that the other two would not consent. So I have given up the fight."

WHEN asked what he thought of the Brooklyn team for 1929, Petty said it was no better than in 1928 and if anything would be worse. He expressed the opinion that the Phillies would finish ahead of the Robins, and that the latter would fight it out with Boston for last place.

"Vance will be expected to keep the Dodgers out of the cellar," Petty said. "He is their only hope. You can bet that when I face them I'll pitch my arm off to get even for the treatment received."

Jim Corbett.

JIM CORBETT, former heavyweight champion, and, at the age of 62, still taking as lively an interest in the fight game as ever, marvels how some young glovemen become celebrities overnight without doing anything of an extraordinary nature. "Half of them don't know a thing about boxing, and in the old days would have been accounted mere fifth-raters," Corbett told Ed Hughes. "Yet, they're talked of in the same breath with great fighting men, and make fortunes that would have dazzled the champions of my day. Take this fellow Schmeling, for instance. Now there's a chap who looks pretty good, no doubt. But what has he done? Who, among the men he has licked, amounted to anything? He whipped two mediocre boxers and then knocked out Risko, who, everyone admits, was washed up."

SIZING up Schmeling, whose full name, by the way, is pronounced as if spelled M-o-x S-h-m-a-l-l-i-n-g, Corbett continued: "When you analyze the thing you've got to admit that the man hasn't done anything yet. Of course, I'm not saying he won't amount to something one day. Maybe he'll be champion of the world, for all I know.

"That's not what I'm driving at. The fact remains he hasn't done anything and yet he is being acclaimed everywhere as a certain world-beater. How would I rate the German right now? That's easy, I don't think he's the greatest living fighter yet by a long shot. What I'd call him right now is just an interesting prospect. That's really all the fellow is, and yet, how the papers rave about him!"

"PERHAPS the sports writers of today have a sharper vision than the scribes of my time, and all this talk about Schmeling may be justified. But it would be hard to convince me of that.

"Why, do you know, when I beat John L. Sullivan, probably the greatest fighter of all time, I didn't get as much space in the papers as Schmeling has been given. It only goes to show how easy it is for modern fighters to get priceless publicity, the stuff that makes them famous and rich."

Eddie Moore.

THE Brooklyn baseball club admits that it tried to get Third Baseman Lester Bell from the Braves, but failed, and intimates that the Cubs also will be unable to swing a deal for that player. The Boston owners either fear criticism if they weaken their team further, or have decided that they can't get along without Bell. "The Braves want to keep him," said Wilbert Robinson in admitting the failure of his efforts. "They're afraid to trust Joe Dugan's trick knee too far." Failing to get Bell, Robbie has turned his attention to Eddie Moore, former Pirate, and is trying to engineer a dicker for the latter with the Brave management. Boston recalled Eddie from the minors, but is said to be willing to make a deal for his transfer to another club.

"GLENN WRIGHT alone assures us of a better infield than we've had in four or five years," said Robbie, "but we could use some extra infield strength. I'll certainly not release Dave Bancroft under present conditions. Why, we'd be in a terrible hole if I let Banny go and one of our regulars was injured. We need even another utility man, and if I can get one before March the deal will be made.

Robbie denies that Dazzy Vance is a holdout. "All the worrying has been in the columns of the newspapers," he said. "It has been reported that Vance is demanding $25,000 for next season. As a matter of fact, the Brooklyn club hasn't even heard from Vance yet, and probably will not until we get to Clearwater. Dazzy resides there and will not be late in reporting."

BILL BRATTON, Pittsburgh ice-skating chief, who is to have charge of the ice sports at Chicago's huge new stadium, writes that work on the construction of the building is progressing rapidly and that the big project is certain to be a great success.

"President Pat Harmon is a great sportsman, with lots of color,"

Bud Taylor Fouls Singer in Fourth

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Al Singer won on a foul over Bud Taylor in the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round bout at Madisoon Square Garden here last night.

Taylor had slightly the better of the milling before the foul blow was struck. The referee evidently did not see the low blow, because he asked one of the judges to give his opinion. Singer, during a mixup, rolled to the floor. The judge decided Singer had been fouled.

Taylor had been warned for hitting low in the second and third rounds.

Mid-Atlantic Loop To Meet Tomorrow

WINDBER, Pa., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Elmer M. Dally, of Windber, president of the Middle Atlantic League, has announced that the annual meeting of the league would be held tomorrow afternoon at the Titlow Hotel, Uniontown. The meeting originally was scheduled for several weeks ago at Charleroi, but was postponed.

MIDWICK RIDERS LOSE

DEL MONTE, Cal., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Sands Point defeated Midwick, 12 to 10, at polo here, in a contest full of action.

South High School Basketball Stars in Heated Race for Honors

FRANZ KULINNA — ALBERT ALPERN — PETER MERVOSH — WILLIAM GOLDSTEIN (C.) — JOE LENGWIN

These five players are the aces of Coach Washabaugh's South High School basketball team for the second half of the season, which has just got under way. Capt. Goldstein, Mervosh and Kulinna are forwards, Alpern plays center and Lengwin is a guard. Capt. Goldstein is the outstanding scorer. He has averaged 12 points per game this season. He is a junior. Mervosh and Lengwin are sophomores and Alpern and Kulinna are seniors. South High is a contender for honors in Section 1 of the City High School Basketball League.

ACTION PROVES TO BE MERE FORMALITY

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—William (Big Bill) Tilden, former national tennis champion, has been reinstated as an amateur in good standing by the executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

This action, predicted last August when Tilden first asked the committee to remove its ban, was a mere formality. When the subject was brought up last night, not a dissenting voice was heard, and the entire procedure required less than five minutes.

BARRED LAST SUMMER

Tilden first was barred from amateur tennis competition early last summer, as a result of his newspaper articles on the Wimbledon tournament. He was dropped from the American Davis Cup team by the executive committee, but was reinstated and permitted to play against the French team, when diplomats of both nations brought pressure to bear on the tennis powers.

Soon after the French team defeated the Americans in the final round of the Davis Cup play, Tilden again was suspended.

Louis Carruthers, of New York, read the report which recommended Tilden's reinstatement.

ONE REFUSES TO VOTE

The roll was called for the acceptance of the report, and every member of the committee except one, who refused to vote on it, acted in Tilden's favor.

The executive committee failed to take any definite action on the national rankings, the holding of an open tournament or on the awarding of the championship tournaments. These three matters, it was said, would come up for final adoption at this afternoon's general meeting.

TILDEN SILENT

HACKENSACK, N. J., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Asked for a statement when informed he had been restored to good amateur standing, Big Bill Tilden informed newspapermen he "had nothing to say until he received official word from the United States Lawn Tennis Association."

Matsuyama Nears 18.2 Title; Tops German Again

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Kinrey Matsuyama, less than twice as tall as a billiard table, but 92 pounds of grit and courage, pulled out a victory over Eric Hagenlacher, of Germany, 400 to 385, in a third round match in the 18.2 balkline title tournament here. The calm little Japanese came from behind to run 68 in the thirteenth inning for his third straight win.

In the afternoon match, Walker Cochran defeated Felix Grange, the French champion, 400 to 158.

Matsuyama must play Welker Cochran and Jake Schaefer in his two remaining games, and one more victory will assure him at least a tie for the crown. Horemans and Cochran are tied for second place, each with two victories and one defeat.

Grange will play his final match today against Hagenlacher in the afternoon contest. Horemans meets Schaefer this evening.

Bucs Get Option On Wichita Hurler

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Art Griggs, owner of the Wichita Club of the Western League, announced here that he had given the Pittsburgh Nationals an option on Herb Sanders, pitcher. Sanders, a former member of the pitching staff of the Los Angeles Pacific Coast League club, turned in a brilliant record last year with Wichita.

BUCS MEET LEAFS' SIX TONIGHT

GAMES TONIGHT.
Pittsburgh at Toronto.
Boston at Montreal.
Detroit at Ottawa.

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—The Pittsburgh Pirates and the Toronto Maple Leafs, who battled to a scoreless tie at Pittsburgh Tuesday, will renew their feud in a National League game here tonight. In addition to deciding which club is to advance in the title race, tonight's game will decide the winner of the Toronto-Pittsburgh season series, each club having annexed a victory over the other prior to Tuesday's deadlock.

Charley Leonard, brother of Benny Leonard, owner of the Pittsburgh club, was serving in the dual role of secretary and manager when the Pittsburghers arrived here today. Odie Cleghorn, manager of the Pirates, is reported as being too ill to accompany his men here, and Leonard is to take care of the managerial duties in tonight's battle.

Both the Bucs and the Leafs are in top condition for a fast battle and a close, hard-fought game is expected. The probable lineup:

Toronto.	Po.	Pittsburgh.
Chabot	G	Miller
A. Smith	R.D	McCaffrey
Clancy	L.D	R. Smith
Blair	C	Frederickson
Bailey	R.W	Darragh
Cox	L.W	Milks

Toronto spares—Duncan, Horner, Lowrey, Grant and Pettinger. Pittsburgh spares—Drury, White, Cotton, Holway and McKinnon.

Stars in Millrose Games Tonight

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—With a field that comes close to making it an indoor Olympic meet, the twenty-second annual running of the Millrose A. A. games will be held in Madison Square Garden tonight.

FLYNN SIGNS M'TIERNAN FOR BOUT

Buck McTiernan, of Hazelwood, will make his professional debut as a boxer in Pittsburgh next Friday night in the semi-final to the Johnny Dunn-Jackie Rodgers bout in the Moose Temple, downtown. His opponent will be Red Ryan, of Washington, Pa., Promoter Francis Flynn announced today.

Buck, who began fighting out of Cleveland when he turned professional, now is back home. In his first start for money in this section, recently, he defeated Allen Beatty at McKeesport, a week after Beatty had stopped Young Guido, of Sharon. Buck has a lot of boxing class and a great career is predicted for him.

DUNN IN WINDUP

Dunn has passed up a 10-round bout in Columbus, O., Monday night with Eddie O'Dowd, of Columbus, to take the local match with Rodgers, which will mark his first appearance in a windup in this city. He defeated Joe Elrene in the semi-final at the Moose Club last week and made a big hit with the fans.

Paddy Mahan, of Charleroi, and Sailor Larson, of Barberton, O., box the 10-round main event of a show in Wheeling tonight. Nat Liffit, of the Hill, and Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, also are on the card, the latter fighting Tony Datolla in a return bout.

SCELLO AT MKEESPORT

Phil Scello, of McKeesport, will meet the best opponent available in the semi-final to the return bout between Dominick Profio and Young Rudy at McKeesport next Thursday night. Lee Sala, of Donora, and Johnny Windsor, of the East End, have been matched for the second bout.

Illinois Comish "Kills" Proposed Big Fight

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—The Illinois State Athletic Commission tossed a bomb into the proposed light-heavyweight championship match between Tommy Loughran, titleholder, and Mickey Walker, ruler of the middleweights.

Paddy Harmon, president of the Chicago Stadium Corporation, was negotiating for the match to open the new $7,000,000 arena. He already has Loughran under contract, but the commission ruled that Walker must first fight a logical contender for the middleweight title.

Paul Prehn, chairman of the commission, said the Loughran-Walker match would be impossible under present circumstances, as Walker was under suspension by the N. B. A. for failure to defend his title.

Willie Davies Wins Over Ruby Bradley

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Corporal Izzy Schwartz, recognized by the New York State Athletic Commission as flyweight champion of the world, won a 10-round decision over French Belanger, Canadian titleholder, here last night.

Willie Davies, 112½, of Charleroi, Pa., won the decision over Dark Cloud (Ruby) Bradley, 110, of Chicago, in a slashing six-round semi-final. Davies was floored twice in the last round, but had piled up enough points to win.

MRS. STERRITT VICTOR

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. H. D. Sterritt, of Hutchinson, Kan., won the Miami Beach women's tournament at the Bay Shore course, yesterday. She won a 2 and 1 victory in the 36-hole final match with Mrs. John Arends, of Chicago.

LOCALS IN GOOD SHAPE FOR BIG TILT

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 9.—A record-shattering crowd of better than 6,000 is expected to jam Notre Dame's gym tonight as the Pitt Panthers and Irish clash in one of the leading intersectional contests of the year.

The Panthers arrived here last night, secured a good night's rest and reported themselves as being primed for tonight's important tussle with Coach Keogan's Irishmen.

Notre Dame is anxious to secure revenge for the 24-22 defeat served it by the Panthers in Pittsburgh last year. At that time both fives were undefeated and on the outcome of the contest hinged the awarding of the national title. Pitt went on through unbeaten, while Notre Dame lost two more games.

The Irish are set to stop the rampaging play of Charley Hyatt, regarded as the greatest college basketball player in the game. Hyatt beat the Irish almost single handed last year.

The Panthers, with decisive triumphs over both Indiana and Iowa, both of which have defeated Notre Dame this year, are even choices to win tonight, despite the disadvantage of playing on a strange floor.

Hawaii and Alaska Get Boxing Bouts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—A bill permitting public 10-round boxing bouts in Hawaii and Alaska was signed yesterday by President Coolidge.

BEAVER VALLEY SOCCER TITLE AT STAKE

TODAY'S GAMES.
BEAVER VALLEY LEAGUE.
Harmony at Ambridge Independents.
BENEFIT GAME.
Douglas at Union Switch and Signal.

By TOM BIRKS.

The leading soccer game of the day will be flashed at Ambridge, where the Horlick club will hook up with the Harmony team, and it is expected that the winning of this game will decide the pennant of the Beaver Valley circuit.

Harmony is the favorite to clinch the pennant, but there is a chance that the robust football playing of the Independents might upset matters a little.

The game will be played at the American Bridge Company grounds and a good crowd is expected.

The other local game will find the Douglas and Union Switch tangling at Swissvale in a benefit game. Seeing that these teams are rivals, the contest should be worth while.

MARKET SQUARE TOURNEY SET

Plans for the sixth annual national open duckpin championship, sponsored by the East Liberty Bowling Association and scheduled at the Market Square Recreation alleys, 409 Market street, beginning April 8 and continuing for two weeks, are rapidly taking form.

The previous tourneys have been highly successful affairs and always have attracted a representative entry from all sections where the rubber band duckpin game is played.

Cash prizes will be awarded the winners, which will include competition for five-men teams as well as for individuals and doubles. Separate events are carded for women.

The Arcade five, of the South Side, which won last year's first prize, rolled exactly 100 pins more than the second place Murphys, who rolled 2,522.

Entry blanks and further information may be had by addressing East Liberty Bowling Association, care Market Square Recreation, 409 Market street.

Bucknell Beats Presidents, 30-29

LEWISBURG, Pa., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Bucknell eked out a 30-29 victory over Washington and Jefferson here last night in a fast basketball game which had the fans see-sawing dizzily during the latter minutes. The lineup:

Golfers Tee Off In Pensacola Open

PENSACOLA, Fla., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Many of America's foremost "money golfers" as well as a number of amateurs were scheduled to tee off here today in the first major tournament of the Florida season—the $5,500 Pensacola open. Thirty-six holes were booked today with the final 36 to be played tomorrow.

Joe Kirkwood, Australian trick shot artist, led the field yesterday to win the 18-hole pro-amateur best ball event with a 65, six under par. His score tied the new course record set up by Billie Burke and Craig Wood in practice rounds.

A. B. C. Tourney Draws 2,501 Teams

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—(INS.)—A record total of 2,501 teams have entered the twenty-ninth annual American bowling congress here. The former entry record was 2,251 teams which flashed last year at Kansas City. The meet, which will open at the Dexter Park Pavilion on Feb. 14, will last for 47 days.

BILL FOR RACING IN STATE HAS STRONG SUPPORT

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

NEWS that a bill to legalize horse racing with pari-mutuel betting in Pennsylvania is to be introduced in the Legislature next week is pleasing to the followers of the thoroughbred sport in Pennsylvania, and they number many thousands.

Deprived of this spectacle, except for a few "bootleg" meets held from time to time, these folks have been waiting for years for the day when legalized racing would come into its own in their commonwealth.

Many of the followers of the turf sport in the state have had to be satisfied with reading about the races or occasionally betting on them. Some of the more fortunate ones have been able to make trips to the tracks in various parts of the country, and annually there is an hegira to the Kentucky Derby at Louisville in special trains.

THE chances of the new bill going through at this time are considerably brighter than at any time in the past. Representative Baldi, of Philadelphia, the sponsor of the measure, saw a similar bill of his creation defeated two years ago, but has not lost hope and since then powerful interests, among them Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate, have swung their influence into the cause.

The income to the state in the way of taxes from legalized horse-racing and betting are enormous and in the case of Pennsylvania, as with other states, could be devoted to keeping the roads in excellent condition for automobile traffic, thus relieving the taxpayers of this burden. Racing as conducted in these modern times, with strict jockey club stewards in command of the situation, is one of the cleanest and best regulated of sports, and the more liberal minds are for it insofar as Pensylvania is concerned.

SPEAKING of racing, Ripley, the cartoonist of Believe It Or Not fame, has dug up figures to show that a $2 parlay on the seven races run at New Orleans, December 21, last year, would have netted the lucky bettor the stupendous sum of $3,062,521,345.20. No bookmaker or syndicate of bookmakers could have paid it, and no one played it. Here are the winning horses and their prices for that day:

1—Thunder Cloud, $31; 2—William P., $30.40; 3—Mystery Ballot, $41.20; 4—Chateau, $44.60; 5—Far Away, $12.40; 6—Kalaba, $144.40; 7—Halt, $96.80.

Here's the way the parlay would have been computed:

Race Play.	*Return.	*Cash in Hand
1st $	$ 31	$ 31
2nd. 31	471	471
3rd. 471	9,702	9,702
4th 9,702	216,355	216,355
5th 216,355.5	1,449,578	1,449,578
6th 1,449,578	104,659,521	104,659,552
7th 104,659,532	5,065,521,348	5,065,521,349

*Cents omitted.

A four-page, six-column newspaper will be published as a souvenir in connection with the testimonial banquet in honor of John Gruber, under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America in the ballroom of the William Penn Hotel next Thursday night. All of the local scribes will contribute pieces in a light and airy vein. It ought to be a knockout. Be sure to get a copy. You can use it to paper that dusty shelf or to wrap up a loaf of bread the next day.

Gus Sonnenberg's "Tackles" O. K. In Illinois

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—(INS.)—The famous "flying tackle" hold of Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg, who used it to advantage recently in dethroning Ed (Strangler) Lewis as world heavyweight wrestling champion, was given the "okay" of the Illinois Athletic Commission today.

The state solons saw the freak hold demonstrated last night at a special exhibition match for that purpose between Sonnenberg and Frank Forbes. The new champion flashed his specialty and had Forbes helpless within 10 minutes.

Kola Kvariani, Russian heavyweight, tossed Moose Norbeck in straight falls in the windup match.

MORE HONORS FOR HARPSTER

Howard Harpster, Carnegie Tech's all-America quarterback of the past season, still finds himself one of the country's most banqueted young men.

Following his return from California, where he captained the East-West eleven in a post-season game that climaxed his college career, Harpster was the guest of honor at a mammoth public demonstration in Akron, his home town. Last Saturday night he was one of the honor guests at the Veteran Athletes' annual banquet to sports champions in Philadelphia, and next Tuesday night he will be honored again, along with Chris Cagle, Ken Strong and Paul Scull, his all-America backfield mates, by the Philadelphia Baseball Writers.

Two nights later, Howard will be one of the guests at the sports dinner in honor of John H. Gruber, dean of the local sports scribes, under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, in the William Penn Hotel. Honored with him here will be Mike Getto, of Pitt, and Leo Raskowski, of Ohio State, other district all-America stars of the 1928 campaign.

W. U. Hoyles defeated Hill Top Y, 25-18, in an A. A. U. tourney game.

LOCAL COLLEGE QUINTS PLAY OUT OF TOWN

By JESS CARVER

Tonight's college basketball program is hardly conducive to stay-at-homeiness. If you want to see action this night, you'll have to forsake the old fireside and your book and pipe and do a bit of traveling.

Pitt and Duquesne are both out of town, the Panthers being in South Bend for a contest with George Keogan's Notre Dame Irish Mules and the Dukes in New York to engage Nat Holman's City College of New York passers. The closest field of action seems to be the St. Francis-Thiel struggle at Greenville. The Pennsy hardly will be swamped for reservations on any of its choo-choos for this contest.

Wash-Jeff completes a three-game jaunt through the central part of the state at State College tonight, meeting the Nittany Lions. West Virginia hooks up with Washington and Lee at Huntington, W. Va., and Wesleyan meets Broaddus at Buckhannon. And that, aside from one more game which will be mentioned in a bit fuller vein later on, completes the card.

BISON PLAY ALLEGHENY

Bethany's Green Bisons are stabled in Meadville today, where the Buffalos will attempt to regain their winnig stride at the expense of Allegheny tonight. The Westminster Titans knocked the boys out of their exalted position as Conference leaders at New Wilmington last night, serving them a 37-22 licking and to tell the truth, didn't have to work overly hard in the doing.

Bethany still works the ball to the corners, a very doubtful style of offense. If the boys are on, and are getting the shots, and if the shots are dropping, they will make it tough. Otherwise, a team with any sort of defense will stop 'em dead. Westminster did just that last night. Now they, the Bisons, are tied with Geneva for the Conference lead.

At half time, Westminster held an 18 to 10 lead, and quickly increased this in the early moments of the second period. Bethany pulled up within 11 points of the Titans during the middle moments of the second half, but O'Donovan and the boys pulled out with points and to spare as the game progressed. Goalie O'Donovan was the leading scorer with nine points, four buckets and one foul. Tudor Lewis sunk four field goals to trail his dashing team-mate by a point. The lineup:

Westminster—37.		Bethany—22.
O'Donovan	F	M. Rush
Delahunty	F	Baker
Crowell	C	Telfair
Rice	G	Damschroder
Lewis	G	Markley

Substitutions—Westminster: Brownlee, Lewis; Bethany: Ronald, Jenkins. Field goals—O'Donovan 4, Lewis 4, Crowell 2, Delahunty 3, Rice 2, Williams 2, Rush 2, Baker 2, Telfair 3. Fouls—Westminster, 3 out of 5, Bethany, 8 out of 14. Referee—Mates. Umpire Hannum.

ARAGON KEEPS TITLE

MANILA, Feb. 9.—(AP.)—Francisco Aragon, tennis champion of the Philippines, retained his title by defeating Lope Yngayo, Davis Cup player, 6-2, 6-2, 3-6, 8-6.

SPORT COMMENT

By JAMES J. LONG

Bill says, "and with a good break he will succeed in the position held by the late Tex Rickard. He is going to do things in a big way at the stadium."

Laverne Fator.

WHERE are the future great jockeys like Laverne Fator, or riders such as McAtee, McAuliffe, Coltilletti or others who might be mentioned, to come from? That's the question that is being asked in Eastern horseracing circles in view of the continued scarcity of saddle experts. After a survey of the situation, Henry King reports a dozen prominent owners of stables as being without jockeys for 1929. The Jockey Club is being blamed for the dearth of material. Henry Pebler attempted to develop jockeys last year by putting on all kinds of apprentice races and giving each horse ridden by an apprentice at Aqueduct and Jamaica an allowance of 10 pounds, but the Jockey Club stopped him. Horsemen say that if Pebler had been permitted to carry out his plans there would have been an abundance of good riders in a few years.

IN KILLING Pebler's scheme, the Jockey Club compromised with those who were eager to have new jockeys developed, and adopted a rule giving an apprentice an allowance of seven pounds until he had won 20 races. They figured the extra two pounds' allowance would be enough. But it didn't satisfy the horsemen who proceeded to discard the apprentinces and ride the old jockeys.

And in the meantime, not a single promising jockey has been seen in the saddle. It's all well enough to argue that the race-going public wants to see the old jockeys in action instead of having them kept on the ground, with apprentices doing the riding, but how are riders for the future to be developed if the youngsters are not given a chance to learn the game?

UPSETS MARK SCHOLASTIC TILTS IN CITY LEAGUE

UPSETS marked the play in the City Senior League yesterday, Perry High came through to defeat Allegheny, 38 to 32, while Schenley took the measure of Fifth Avenue in Section 1, 33 to 28. Peabody High dropped a bit when Westinghouse defeated it, 25-18.

Speculative Scare Abates: G. M. New Head Loves Work.

By B. C. FORBES

LAMMOT DU PONT, the new chairman of General Motors, is the hardest-working member of the family. He is the youngest brother of Pierre S. du Pont, whose withdrawal from the helm of General Motors is sincerely regretted by all his associates.

It was Pierre du Pont who foresaw the advantages of enabling General Motors executives to share in the profits and who made it possible for them to invest in the stock when it was worth only a fraction of today's value. Pierre du Pont differs from most industrial Napoleons. Although he has accomplished very big things through his business statesmanship, he is more interested in non-money-making activities. Highly cultured, his main hobby is the dissemination of education.

Lammot is more typical of the dynamic American executive. Irenee du Pont, an older brother, who preceded Lammot as president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., decided several years ago to lead a less strenuous life. Lammot loves to work. He is especially noted for his democratic habits. Although he is, of course, many times a millionaire, members of his large family have imbibed their father's liking for work. His oldest daughter took a job as soon as she finished her education, a fact of which her dad was quite proud.

This change in the chairmanship of General Motors does not imply any lessened interest in the corporation by the du Pont family. It simply means that the eldest brother, who leans toward the cultural things of life, has handed over his mantle to a younger brother who finds keen relish in wrestling with business problems.

A. P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, will continue the active directing head of the far-flung corporation, ably seconded by Fred J. Fisher and the other brainy giants constituting the higher-up executive force.

THE stock market is undergoing a test, perhaps the severest it has yet encountered. The disturbance precipitated by the Federal Reserve Board's action apparently alarmed Washington. The Treasury Department manifestly tried to exercise a mollifying influence. Nobody—outside of Wall Street bears—desires to see anything resembling a stock market debacle, because the effect upon business and employment might be very unfortunate. On the other hand, were the speculative boom to go on and on absorbing more and more credit, the effect upon enterprise and employment would also, it is reasoned, be unfortunate. Hence the restrictive measures

The market yesterday acted more calmly than many had predicted. The resistance shown by most stocks showed clearly that many holders still were confident in the soundness of current quotations. The danger is that the general public may suddenly take fright and start throwing stocks on the market regardless of prices realized. Should that happen, the bulls, notwithstanding that they admittedly are tremendously powerful, would be rendered helpless.

However, the market's action yesterday was the reverse of panicky. He would be a bold man who would dare to predict what was going to happen next.

FRED T. FISHER, after a very severe attack of influenza, has gone to California to recuperate.

ONE city, contemplating national advertising, asks me whether it should concentrate on attracting tourists or new industries. Both are desirable, but, in my opinion, new industries are more fundamental for the solid growth of most cities.

What even one plant can mean to a city was vividly illustrated by Edgar S. Bloom, president of Western Electric, at a dinner tendered him in Baltimore, where the company is building a plant. Said President Bloom:

"When finally completed to ultimate capacity, our Point Breeze plant will provide employment for about 30,000 people, which will mean, after making due allowance for the members of the families of Western Electric workers not gainfully employed, an addition of 75,000 to the population of your city. We must, however, add to this figure an additional 75,000 to cover the accessory population, of which number it is estimated that 35,000 will be gainfully employed, catering to the needs of Western Electric employes and their families, and also to the needs of the accessory group. To put it in another way, our Point Breeze plant at ultimate capacity will sustain a total population of 150,000 people. When that capacity is reached, we will have a yearly payroll of upwards of $48,000,000 and the annual sales value of our output will be in excess of $175,000,000."

PRESIDENT G. M. WILLIAMS of the Marmon Motor Car Company predicts that automobiles of the future will be driven by electric motors receiving their power by radio direct from centrally-located transmitting stations, each car owner being assigned a special wave length. That's a thrilling picture. But don't buy radio shares on the strength of it.

TRANS-AMERICA CAPITAL OVER BILLION

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 9.—(AP.)—An increase in the authorized capital of Trans-America Corporation to $1,250,000,000, represented by 50,000,000 shares of $25 par value stock, was approved at the annual meeting of its stockholders here today. The increase previously had been voted by the board of directors.

Plans of the corporation to form a British company with headquarters in London to take over the activities of the parent company in foreign enterprises also were announced. Foreign companies under Trans-America control include the Banca D'America, E. D'Italia and the Ameritalia Corporation.

The board of directors was authorized to distribute stock as dividends or to use it in the purchase of additional enterprises. L. M. Giannini, executive vice president, said the directors had been authorized also to increase the capital stocks of companies under Trans-America control. The number of Trans-America stockholders was given at more than 110,000.

That Trans-America, which now pays a $4 annual dividend, may adopt a policy of paying its entire dividend in stock was hinted by Giannini in referring to general plans for the future. There have been many reports that the directors would declare a stock dividend at their New York meeting February 15.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

February 23 Closing Hinted.

The decision to close the Stock Exchange was arrived at about a week ago, it is learned today, and had nothing to do with the Federal Reserve Board's statement, as suggested in some quarters. A number of important houses several weeks ago petitioned the exchange to close every Saturday for a while. This matter was referred to the committee, which reported that such a step would be inadvisable, but suggested closing the exchange on Saturdays occasionally on account of the "flu" epidemic and pressure of work on clerical forces. It is possible the exchange may close again February 23.

Oil Well Investment.

Stockholders of Oil Well Supply Investment Company at a special meeting February 18 will act on proposals to change the name of the company to Pennsylvania Industries, Inc., increase common stock from 400,000 shares to 750,000 and retire the outstanding 7 per cent cumulative stock. Authorization also will be sought for the creation of $10,000,000 6 per cent cumulative preferred, part of which will be sold. It is also proposed to offer common stock and subscription warrants to purchase common stock at $30 per share.

Oil Code Hearing Monday.

Hearings by the Federal Trade Commission of a code of ethics recently adopted by the American Petroleum Institute will be opened at St. Louis Monday. The code sets up regulations governing the sale of petroleum and its products, forbidding the granting of secret rebates and other discriminations sometimes granted as inducements to attract business.

Minimum Commission Raised.

Harvey Fisk & Sons, of New York, members of the N. Y. Stock Exchange, announced that on and after February 15, their minimum commission on each transaction will be $3. This advance, the firm says, is made necessary by steadily increasing overhead costs.

The New York Stock Exchange ruling is that the minimum charge is $1 on any small transaction, but brokers are permitted to charge any amount they choose above that figure. It is understtod that one of the big commission houses with nation wide connections has established a minimum of $2.50 on business from banks and brokers and $5 on transactions for individuals.

"Liquid" Assets.

Eight cases of prime Canadian whiskies for each of 660,000 common shares outstanding are included in the list of assets of Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts, Ltd., leading Canadian distillers, according to the latest balance sheet. At Broadway prices this represents "liquid" assets of $768 for each stockholder, although the company values its present storage stocks of 11,000,000 imperial gallons at only actual manufacturing costs—50 cents per gallon.

About 4,400,000 gallons of this stock will ultimately be consumed right in Canada, largely by American tourists, if the company's experience in 1928 is a criterion.

3 STILLS TAKEN IN DRY RAIDS

Three moonshine plants, valued by prohibition agents at $2,000, were destroyed in raids yesterday. Two stores and a dwelling also were visited.

A 200-gallon still was reported found at 2816 Bedford avenue, where George Stern, 40, was arrested. One of 50-gallon capacity declared seized in a dwelling at 517 Center avenue, Braddock, led to the arrests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Derichi, the agent said. In a two-story brick building at 64 Seitz street, the agents said they found a 150-gallon outfit in operation. Nobody was in the place at the time of the raid.

Sidney Waltuch, 22, of 2166 Center avenue, and Frank Falcone, of 883½ Washington street, were arrested after liquor was seized in their stores, it was reported. Dorothy Moscynac, of Crafton, was ordered to report for a hearing following the discovery of a pint of moonshine in her home, the raiders' report states.

Escaped Life Termer Caught in Wheeling

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 9. — Samuel Blevins, 24, life-termer in the state prison at Moundsville, who escaped with two others by cutting through the prison roof and scaling the prison wall early Thursday, was captured in Wheeling yesterday by Charles Flannagan, member of the Wheeling Police Department, after a chase.

"Good Turn" Tags Distributed By Scouts

Picked Boy Scouts from the various Allegheny County troops distributed "good turn" tags today at all principal downtown corners.

The activity was part of the program of the annual Scout "Good Turn Week," which started yesterday and which will continue until next Thursday. The tags were furnished by the Better Traffic Committee and bore rules for pedestrians and motorists.

Earlier in the day, about 2,000 Scouts marched from Liberty Bridge to the Grand Theater, where they were guests of the Stanley Corporation of America.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was good today at the Pittsburgh wholesale produce district. Little change was made in the quotations.

There was a good supply of poultry, with a slow demand, market weak and quotations unchanged.

Butter, cheese and eggs stood steady. Little change was visible on the quotations on these markets.

Car lot supplies were liberal, a total of 611 cars being on track. Arrivals included 19 cars of apples, 4 cabbage, 1 grapefruit, 4 lettuce, 4 onions, 16 oranges, 2 spinach, 10 potatoes, 2 tomatoes, 2 cauliflower, 1 chicory and 1 parsley.

60-Year Bridal Gift Goes to Ford Museum

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 9.—Mrs. Pamelia Chaney, of West Alexander, this county, has just made a contribution to the Henry Ford relic museum. It is a powder horn given her as a wedding present 60 years ago by a man named Robert Ford.

BILLIONS WIPED OUT BY DROP IN STOCKS

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL
Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Two unexpected adverse credit developments—a Federal Reserve Board warning against the rising total of brokers' loans, and a rise from 4½ to 5½ per cent in the Bank of England discount rate—unsettled the stock market this week. Prices, which had been mounting rather steadily since the first of the year in response to favorable trade and business news, fell back sharply, wiping out billions of dollars in quoted values on the leading security exchanges of the country.

The Federal Reserve Board statement pointed out that increasing interest rates resulting from the abnormal absorption of credit by the securities markets were likely to prove detrimental to business, and stated bluntly that speculative credit must be restrained. This was immediately followed by the rise in the Bank of England's rate, which served to check the flow of gold from London to New York and destroyed the hopes of further credit expansion through increased gold reserves.

RECOVERIES UNIMPRESSIVE

Reactions in many of the leading industrial and railroad shares ran from 5 to 35 points. There were a few recoveries but, except in the case of coppers which responded to further advances in red metal prices, they were rather unimpressive in character.

The weekly brokers' loan statement showed a further increase of $110,000,000, setting a new high record at $5,669,000,000, with most of the week's gain for the account of out-of-town banks. This was followed on Friday by the calling of $40,000,000 in loans, which sent the call money rate from 6 to 9 per cent.

The stock market was closed today to afford relief to the personnel of member banks, which has been hard hit by the influenza epidemic of recent weeks.

BUILDING INDUSTRY HIT

So far as could be learned the building industry has been the chief sufferer from the high money rates, many projects being held up because of the difficulty in financing them. Most of the other leading industries, such as steel, automobile and copper, are operating at high levels, with no business depression in sight.

Passing of the cruiser bill by both houses of Congress brought a flurry of buying into the shares of steel companies likely to benefit from this new construction. Railroad and automobile buying of steel also has been running heavy in volume, with the railroad equipment manufacturers reporting a substantial increase in orders last month over the first month of 1928.

For the fourth consecutive year, General Motors reported record sales and earnings. Dividends on the new $10-par common stock were inaugurated at the rate of $3 annually as against a regular rate of $5 on the old stock, which was split up last December on a 2½-for-1 basis. Merger of the General Gas and Electric and Associated Gas and Electric companies was announced, and negotiations practically concluded for a combination of the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation and Financial and Industrial Securities, two of the leading investment trusts.

High-priced specialties were among the hardest hit in the week's reaction. Radio Corporation old stock broke sharply on the acknowledgement of its counsel that the stock was selling far above its intrinsic worth. General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Johns Manville, Adams Express, Case Threshing and Allied Chemical also broke in rather spectacular fashion. Many of these securities are selling on a yield basis of 3 per cent or less.

Associated Charities Votes Name Change

The Associated Charities changed its name to Family Welfare Association at its annual meeting held yesterday in Utility Hall, Philadelphia Company Building. All trustees were re-elected.

During 1928 the organization had more families under its care than ever before in its history. Disbursements during the year totaled $142,954.83, an increase of $11,215.24 over the previous year.

WORLD NOTING TEMPERANCE CONTEST

Writing from the Mitsui Bank of Tokio, Japan, John G. Morgan, representative of the General Bronze Corporation, praises the Temperance Prize Contest in America initiated through William Randolph Hearst's offer of a $25,000 cash prize for the most workable substitute for prohibition. He declares:

"Prohibition has created a vast army of drunkards from among those who are a normally temperate people. Not only that, as every sensible and observing person can note, but the nation is wasting millions to pay the salaries of newly created and legally appointed enforcement officers who become corrupted through graft. Many of these drink themselves, though free access to seized liquor, until they cannot stand up.

"The enforcement officers do this in many instances, not because it is in pursuit of their duty in apprehending law violators, but because they are in league with the bootleggers and rum runners, whom in fact they frequently represent. Only those who are extremely naive or stupidly blind to facts can support total prohibition after its 10 years of trial.

"Intelligent people in every country are watching for the outcome of the Hearst search for a prize-winning thesis which will show a sensible way out of the morass in which the nation was bogged by well-meaning enthusiasts who could not understand that a statutory command on a matter of personal morals, good taste and individual cultivation cannot be enforced."

Political Outlook

Commenting on the political outlook for prohibition, Hugh E. Fox, editor of the Periscope, New York, writes:

"If Mr. Hoover followed the example of his predecessors, he would give prohibition his blessing in a few pious words, and perhaps put it once more up to the governors of the several states. Or, he might let the matter drift, in the hope that somehow or other the people will get tired of it and become indifferent. If not reconciled to prohibition.

"A moral crusader like Mr. Charles E. Hughes might stump the country in the hope of converting people to it. But Mr. Hoover is a practical man and has had experience with all sorts and conditions of men in all countries. The logical approach would be a preliminary survey. We surmise that the next step will be the appointment of a competent commission to get facts as to the consequences of prohibition.

"If President Hoover appoints such a commission, it will not be for the purpose of evading his personal responsibility, and he will not be satisfied with an academic report. Eventually, we believe, he will be forced by the facts and by the logic of his own reasoning to the conclusion that the law must be modified."

Following are interviews by Hearst newspaper correspondents with men of note, on the temperance prize contest:

Judge Oscar Leser

Judge Oscar Leser, of the Maryland state tax commission:

"Mr. Hearst's move is most commendable. The object of prohibition is to stop drunkenness and promote public order. The experiment under the Volstead act has demonstrated that temperance cannot be achieved that way. To be respected a law must be respectable. The popular vote of over 15,000,000 for Smith was much more significant of wet sentiment than was the Hoover vote significant of dry sentiment.

"Millions of liberal minded Republicans voted for Hoover in the belief that he will keep his promise to be governed by a fact-finding survey of the actual working of this 'noble experiment' in the governmental regulation of private habits.

"The city of Baltimore was carried by Hoover. Yet our people are overwhelmingly wet as shown by the referendum which was taken during the World War and in which the dries were outvoted three to one. In the recent election, Massachusetts, although giving Smith a small majority over Hoover, recorded the colossal majority of 285,000 in favor of the outright repeal of the Eighteenth amendment. This statement of public sentiment was obtained under a law peculiar to that state. In this connection I would suggest that it presents one of the most effective methods for ascertaining the real feeling of the people.

"It ought to be applied in every state of the union. This would settle the question as to how the people feel about it. You will find, however, that the professional and fanatical drys would move heaven and earth to prevent such tests from being taken. They prefer to rely on assertions, but as the late John K. Cowen once said, 'There is nothing like the potency of a definite fact.'"

William H. Park, M. D.

Dr. William H. Park, of New York University, specialist on pulmonary diseases and member of the New York Board of Health:

"There seems to be little doubt that temperance is something greatly to be desired and also that it is something that our so-called prohibition has in a great measure failed to achieve.

"It seems to me, therefore, that a contest to stir people's minds in this direction should be a progressive step. Mr. Hearst's contest calls for clear thinking on the part of the contestants and there is a chance that through this competition of ideas a genuine solution for the present liquor problems will be reached."

George H. Johnson

George H. Johnson, city collector and director of public celebrations, Boston, Mass.:

"You can register my indorsement of Mr. Hearst's Prize Contest on the modification of the Volstead act 100 per cent. All sensible people must admit the need of such a change and with fearless convictions support any movement principled along these lines.

"Mr. Hearst has many times before championed the great causes of this country, be it my mind this prohibition cause is the greatest and most vitally important one he has undertaken. I wish him all success and hope that the people of the country take up his suggestion seriously and conscientiously.

"Prohibition is not today the expression of the people of the country. The government has no right to tell its people that to drink any more than it should say what they can eat. If we are an intelligent people, let our intelligence not be insulted."

Obituary

William S. Bumbaugh

MONESSEN, Pa., Feb. 9.—(AP)—William Sherman Bumbaugh, 63, industrial and financial leader in the upper Monongahela Valley, died at his Belle Vernon home last night after a long illness. He was president of the Monessen Foundry and Machine Company, chairman of the board of the First National Bank and Trust Company of Monessen, president of the Grandview Land Company, a director of the Monessen Thrift and Loan Corporation and an officer of the Monessen Sand and Gravel Company, as well as numerous other business concerns. He was a Mason and a member of the Duquesne Club and the Keystone Athletic Club at Pittsburgh. The widow, a daughter, Mrs. Jerome Bowland, of Belle Vernon, and a brother, Frank D. Bumbaugh, of Monessen, survive.

Jacob Colmer

Jacob Colmer, 86, a Civil War veteran, died yesterday in his home, 528 Orchard avenue, Avalon. Mr. Colmer was born April 1, 1842, at Duffs Mills, Franklin Township. He was mustered into the Civil War with Company E, Fifth West Virginia Calvary, as a corporal, but was later advanced to the position of lieutenant. In 1868 he married Mary Scott. In 1881 he moved to Avalon, where he had lived since, and where he was engaged in the insurance business for many years. He also served as postmaster until the office was taken over by the Bellevue sub-station. He was an elder in the Avalon Presbyterian church and a member of Allegheny Lodge No. 223, F. & A. M.; Twin City Lodge No. 241, I. O. O. F., and Ale Harrison Post No. 88, G. A. R. He leaves the following children: William H., of Washington, D. C.; Miss Alice S. and Charles S. Colmer, both of Avalon, and Mrs. Albert H. Wiskeman, of Ben Avon.

Edward Kelley

Edward Kelley, 52, an instructor in the vocational department of the Board of Education and a well-known resident of Pittsburgh, died yesterday in his home, 560 North Highland avenue. Mr. Kelley was born at Staten Island, N. Y. For many years he was a merchant tailor here, but for the last seven years had been connected with the Board of Education. He was a member of Sacred Heart Catholic Church. He leaves his widow, Anne Kelley, and sons, Joseph E. Kelley, of Pittsburgh, died Thursday in the family home in Los Angeles, Cal., according to word received here. She was born in Pittsburgh and lived here until six years ago when she moved to California. She was a member of Guyasuta Lodge, Order of Eastern Star, and of the West End Methodist Episcopal Church. She leaves her husband, a brother and a sister.

Mrs. Margaret Beck

Funeral services were to be held in Etna today for Mrs. Margaret Fechter Beck, widow of J. Frederick Beck, who died last week in her home in San Diego, Cal. She formerly resided in Etna but moved to California several years ago. She leaves seven daughters and three brothers.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Polen

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 9.—Mrs. Elizabeth M. Polen, 81, widow of Benjamin Polen, is dead at the home of her son, John Polen, of near Claysville. She was born in Greene County, where she lived until middle age. She leaves three sons and five daughters.

Philip Hartleb

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 9.—Philip Hartleb, 54, member of the firm of Hartleb Brothers and Smith, and one of the leading automobile men in this city, died yesterday following an illness of four months.

7 Rules of $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

LOANS $10 to $300

BORROW FROM "HOUSEHOLD" AND SAVE

Almost One-Third

Loans $10 to $300

This old established organization by reason of large volume efficient management and ample capital is now making a substantial reduction in the cost of loans up to $300 by lowering the interest rate from the lawful maximum of 3½ per cent a month on unpaid principal balance to 2½ per cent.

FOR EXAMPLE ON LOANS Payable in 20 Equal Monthly Payments. You Save as Follows:

$ 50	Loan—You Save	$ 5.25
100	Loan—You Save	10.50
200	Loan—You Save	21.00
300	Loan—You Save	31.50

THE SAME PROPORTIONATE SAVING ON OTHER AMOUNTS.

Loans may be paid in full at any time and you will only be charged for the actual time you keep the money. You get the full amount in cash—no deductions of any kind. We do not notify your employer, neither do we make inquiry of your friends, relatives nor tradespeople. If it is not convenient to call personally phone Atlantic 1198 or Atlantic 0735 and we will send a representative to your home.

NO INDORSERS—NO PUBLICITY. QUICK SERVICE.

SECTION 2. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to advertise, in accordance with the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the Ordinances of the said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same, for proposals for the grading to a width of 36.0 feet, paving and curbing of said street between said points; the contract or contracts therefor to be let in the manner directed by the said Acts of Assembly and Ordinances; and the contract price or contract prices, if let in separate contracts, not to exceed the total sum of Twenty-eight Thousand Two Hundred ($28,200.00) Dollars, which is the estimate of the whole cost as furnished by the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses of the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, relating thereto and regulating the same, and the City's share of said work be chargeable to and payable from Code Account No. ——, People's Bond Issue, 1928.

SECTION 4. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ordinance, copy of which is published herewith, was introduced in Council of the City of Pittsburgh, on February 14, 1928, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly authorizing said City, without any petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys, or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 477.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the grading to a width of 36.0 feet, paving and curbing of Duffield street, from Bryant street to Vilsack street; letting a contract therefor, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses of the same be assessed against and collected from property specially benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Duffield street, from Bryant street to Vilsack street be graded to a width of 36.0 feet, paved and curbed.

SECTION 2. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to advertise, in accordance with the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the Ordinances of the said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same, for proposals for the grading to a width of 36.0 feet, paving and curbing of said street between said points; the contract or contracts therefor to be let in the manner directed by the said Acts of Assembly and Ordinances; and the contract price or contract prices, if let in separate contracts, not to exceed the total sum of Twenty-eight Thousand Two Hundred ($28,200.00) Dollars, which is the estimate of the whole cost as furnished by the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses of the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, relating thereto and regulating the same, and the City's share of said work be chargeable to and payable from Code Account No. ——, People's Bond Issue, 1928.

SECTION 4. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ordinance, copy of which is published herewith, was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on September 10, 1928, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly authorizing said City, without any petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys, or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 3934.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the grading, paving and curbing of Schubert street, in the 26th Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Spring Garden avenue to the westerly line of the Jacob Mutzig Plan of Lots, vacating a portion thereof at the second angle west of Spring Garden avenue, establishing the grade thereof and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Schubert street, from Spring Garden avenue to the westerly line of the Jacob Mutzig Plan of Lots be and the same is hereby widened to a variable width by taking for public use for highway purposes all of the property hereinafter described as portions "A" and "B" respectively, to-wit:

BUGS BAER Says

STALLING OFF THE PIPER

THE Reparations Committee is now on the tall surf, otherwise known as the high sea.

It consists of J. P. Morgan, a chip that is bigger than the old block, and Owen Young, known more familiarly as Mr. Young.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

They are accompanied by Tom Perkins and Tom Lamont, two more boys who are suffering from nervous indigestion of millions.

The quartet sailed last week at midnight. But they were not sneaking out.

They are headed for Paris to chat over war debts and other discarded superstitions.

Like the preacher being chased by the bear, the committee reports progress.

All committees report progress. That's their business. It was the first bulletin issued by the Kaiser's staff from Holland.

J. P. Morgan, who is a junior of the senior, confidently expects to collect something in Europe. Probably some Paris postcards.

He gave us an exclusive interview before sailing.

The interview was so exclusive that we were not even there.

What he might have said was, "If they have it we will get it.

"If they haven't got it we don't want it."

There's a remark that dropped right on the foul line in left field.

You can score it any way you want. The best way is to send the runners back to their bases and start all over again.

We have made 65 attempts to bill Europe.

It's a very lovely affair.

We do the billing. And Europe does the cooing.

Reparation means restoring, repairing, making amends or atonement.

And so far as the war debts are concerned the Day of Atonement has not yet arrived.

WASHINGTON—Congressman Frisby has walked now for three days and four nights, thus shattering his previous record of this time yesterday by 24 hours!

A slight limp, which developed a week ago, caused some anxiety today. However, a chiropractor was called and repairs were made while Mr. Frisby marked time.

Another incident yesterday threatened the contest. It seems Mr. Frisby was being refueled with bananas. And instead of tossing the peels over his shoulder, as is customary, he carelessly threw them in his own path. Street inspectors, however, said that the concrete sidewalk was not seriously damaged.

Railroad Improvements End Saga of "Limerick"

The mills and furnaces of "Limerick," as the territory along the south side of the Monongahela, from Smithfield street to the Point Bridge, used to be called, have gradually been silenced until now only some of the structures remain, with none of the former industry that marked one of Pittsburgh's most colorful localities. Shortly part of the terrain, which formerly belched smoke, and gold and plug hats for puddlers and rollers, will be the scene of operations calling for more than $1,000,000 in terminal improvements for the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad.

The railroad program has been announced following a conference with Council, at which the city representatives set the future line of West Carson street, so the railroad company could proceed with its plans for warehouse and yard construction. Contracts for this work, it is said, will be let within a month.

And thus will come another, almost final, verse in the saga of "Limerick," with its iron of metal and of men, with its legendary opulent saloon and its antithesis, the church of St. Malachi, the dingy colored clapboards of which, so the tale runs, once housed worshipers who garnered the offerings of the faithful, mostly in bills, in silk hats.

Progress cares nothing for romance, but romance has not been in "Limerick" these many years.

Lotteries Easy to Find If Police Are Vigilant

Lotteries, so-called "pools," which grasp for the pennies of the children, the nickels and dimes of the poor and the quarters, halves and dollars of the more affluent dupes, can be cleaned up. Police and county detectives, in two days, have made raids on three of them, seizing tickets and other equipment. This "racket" is one that can be kept down only by vigilance, but "pools" are easy to locate if the authorities wish to find them.

The old "policy" games, which formerly gave grafters a simple means of taking money from the poor were suppressed, but in their place have grown up the "pools," which, evidence has shown, have given some persons "easy picking" incomes of many thousands of dollars a year. But there is not one of them that should remain undetected for more than a week or two at the most.

To succeed they must dispose of their tickets. This involves numerous agents and even peddling, since there must be a large accumulation of small change to make such petty filching pay its big dividends. Crooked schemes which have to operate so openly leave a plain trail, so plain that the most blind sleuth should have little trouble in finding it.

Appropriation Is Urged For Cancer Institution

A bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives in Harrisburg calling for an appropriation for a state hospital for the treatment of cancer, the proposal emanating from and being sponsored and urged by the cancer commission of the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania.

The commission points out that, although the general death rate, in a few years, has dropped from 16 per cent to 11.4 per cent, the death rate from cancer, in the same period, has increased from 58.9 per cent to 95.4 per cent.

It is claimed there now are about 100,000 cancer sufferers in the state and that they are not getting a square deal. The promoters feel that a special cancer institution would give those afflicted with the malady the benefit of the service of persons trained in the treatment of the disease and that it also would facilitate the study of cancer in an intelligent way.

But it appears the only hope for the bill is that of having it come before the Governor as an emergency measure of sufficient importance to warrant his signing it. It has that importance, its promoters state. Certainly there is no doubt that the gravity of cancer's spread grows each year and that it behooves us to give the situation more serious attention than we have given it.

Meat for Thinkers and Fighters

Vegetables Alone Won't Do.

A well-known chain of restaurants will give up the theory that meat isn't good for you.

Meat prohibition, like other kinds of prohibition, doesn't work well. In addition to which, meat is necessary to those that use their brains. Vegetables will do for those that only use their muscles.

When the Japanese started to fight Russia, most SUCCESSFULLY, one of the first things they did was to change soldiers from a rice to a meat diet. The Japanese could not walk fast enough or fight hard enough with all that rice inside of them.

You know that meat-eating animals live on vegetable-eating animals. So, eat meat and, as our slang has it, "don't let anybody tell you different," except your doctor.

ALICE IN BOTTLELAND

(Copyright, 1929.)

MR. McCAY presents a perfect picture of prohibition AS IT IS. Words can add little to such a picture; it tells its whole story at a glance.

We have prohibition, a poor little "Alice in Bottleland."

We have "enforcement" about as efficient as the white rabbit in the well-known story.

And we have BOTTLES.

We have bottles and fancy forged labels by the millions. We have some not-so-poisonous liquor from Canada, from Mexico, from bootleg ships.

But the great forest of "Bottleland" is home grown.

We have bottles with more or less wood alcohol, sometimes deadly, sometimes killing slowly.

We have, and ABSORB, millions of bottles of the vilest whisky, called "white mule" and "third rail."

We have synthetic gin, sometimes made from denatured alcohol, redistilled, leaving a good deal of poison in it.

We have "needled beer," which is beer made without alcohol, leaving the brewery under the "vigilant eye" of the enforcement officer.

It is delivered to the saloonkeepers, of whom hundreds of thousands are in this country. Then the beer is "needled."

Poisonous alcohol is pumped into it through a gigantic hypodermic syringe, making the poisonously alcoholic strength of this "near beer" up to 8 or 10 per cent.

And that is the stuff that American workmen drink, thousands of kegs of it, in place of properly made beer that once paid taxes to the Government, and did NOT poison men.

How long must "Alice in Bottleland" continue her bewildering pilgrimage?

What, if anything, are the people of the United States going to do about this picture and this situation?

Tales That Are Told

Saving His Breath

THE barrister had returned home after an important case in which he had been defending a man charged with murder.

"What was the verdict?" asked his wife, rushing into the hall.

"He was acquitted," beamed the barrister.

"Wonderful! On what grounds?"

"Insanity. I proved that his father had spent five years in a lunatic asylum."

"But he hadn't, had he?"

"Yes," said the barrister; "he was a doctor there, but I saw no need to bring that fact out."

Cool and Calm

"STOP, thief!" shouted a woman, and, dropping a number of articles he held in his hands, a burly individual fled through the bargain basement.

Feverishly people searched for the thief. At last they trailed him to the manager's office, and when they went in they found him seated in a swivel-chair smoking a cigar.

"What are you doing here?" growled a shop detective, seizing him by the arm.

"Believe me, or believe me not," answered the culprit, "I'm waiting for the flying squad."

Remembered His Manners

FOR more than 10 minutes the diner had been picking at the fowl on his plate. At last, in despair, he put down his knife and fork.

"Waiter!" he shouted.

"Yes, sir?" said the waiter, hurrying towards him.

"I believe it is considered improper to speak disrespectfully of one's elders."

"Yes, sir, I believe it is."

The diner pushed his plate away from him.

"Very well," he said, "I have always behaved like a gentleman. I won't make any complaints about this fowl."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

A GUY that was just out of college got a job in a bank as a messenger. The bank paid him just a few dollars a week, but it was awful particular about him keeping his clothes pressed and acting like a millionaire. When the kid come in to the president one day he says, "Say, boss, I can hardly get along on my salary. Don't you think you could double it and maybe give me enough that way to buy my lunches anyhow?"

"Look here, young man," says the financial giant, "we don't like to have our employes talking about wages. We do you a big favor to give you this big opportunity here in the bank. And we want you to appreciate it. Didn't you tell me when you came here that you had all the qualities we demanded? Didn't you tell me you were very saving?"

"Sure."

"But now I hear you spent all your allowance when you were in college, and went in debt."

"Well, yes, but you ought to see all the cigaret coupons I saved."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"HUMAN nature doesn't change"—you've heard that often. And probably, like most of us, you've thought of human nature as something we receive at birth, just as we receive our skeltons and internal organs—infant size, to be sure, but all ready to be wound up and set going.

"Johnny takes after his father's side of the family," you've heard that too—the assumption being that Johnny arrived with a full set of cussed impulses and instincts all patterned after the Joneses. Such being the case, it was futile to buck heredity. And what a lovely weapon it put in mamma's hand every time Johnny pulled a tantrum.

Human nature didn't—couldn't—change. Human nature was a tangible quality which was fixed within us as our bones were fixed and there was nothing we could do about it. You might teach a child to use his hanky or raise his hat but his essential nature was beyond your manipulation. That was the way we've regarded human nature since Eve first bit into that apple. But at last we're discarding that theory.

Come now wise men who say that human nature not only changes, but does nothing but! And claim that it's all poppycock to blame Johnny's disposition on dad's side of the family, for it's a sheer impossibility for Johnny to get anything at birth from any human being save his seven or eight pounds of baby flesh.

In other words, these gentlemen claim that human nature is MADE, not transmitted, and that we inherit nothing save a few crude brute reactions—that all our HUMAN nature is shaped by training and environment AFTER birth.

Pre-natal influence.

"Pooh!" snort the scientists; "there's no such thing! A mother may influence a child's body through her own blood stream, but she cannot possibly influence its character, for it hasn't even the making of character until it is born."

This theory is called BEHAVIORISM, and Dr. Watson is its foremost exponent. But many other psychologists and biologists are commending it.

"I BELIEVE THAT ALL HUMAN BEHAVIOR HIGHER THAN THAT OF A LOW MONKEY IS MADE, NOT BORN," says Dr. Dorsey in his now book, "Hows and Whys of Human Behavior."

Does that theory startle you? It shouldn't. It's a very hopeful theory, quite the most hopeful theory we've ever had about human behavior. If it's true it really gives the child a fair start. But, of course, it robs papas and mamas of a lot of useful alibis.

Hitherto if Bobby and Bessie turned out to be young savages mama could blame it on God or the relatives. Now she'll have to face the most uncomfortable fact that she created those young savages through her own bad temper, laziness, unfairness and general stupidity.

According to the Behaviorists Bobby and Bessie did not need to be savages. They had all the makings of civilized beings, like other normal children. But they needed proper training and environment to develop those qualities. And if they don't develop, mother and dad are to blame.

Which is certainly going to be a sad blow to a lot of peevish progenitors.

BIOCHEMICAL ENTITY

By Garrett P. Serviss

SUCH is the name by which Prof. Harry Elmer Barnes, of Smith College, designates the race of man. It is more elaborate, but not more respectful, than the old term "biped." Neither of them is anything but a short description of a physical being. The soul is left out of both. But there is this difference: The word biped is currently used without any implication concerning the spiritual quality of man, while Prof. Barnes employs his term in disparagement of that quality and to help his argument for "the necessity of adopting a secular outlook in our search for knowledge and human improvement."

Prof. Barnes uses the word "secular" in its leading signification as given by the dictionary, i. e., "pertaining to this world or the present life as opposed to eternity and the life to come. He doesn't think that either religion or God is essential to human happiness, but, if we must have them, let them be reformed on scientific lines, and particularly in accord with "the contemporary astro-physical view" and that of "mental hygiene."

"Mental hygiene" appears to be a phrase based on the Freudian philosophy. But while he is, quite properly, enormously impressed by the great theories and researches of astrophysics, the astrophysical astronomers must themselves be somewhat puzzled to guess what Prof. Barnes' ideas about the meaning of their science are when he links it up with mental hygiene in a quixotic war on God and on the windmills of "orthodox religion."

"In the old days," says Prof. Barnes, "theology was logically the 'queen of the sciences' because the chief interest was in salvation; today mental hygiene may be viewed as the new 'queen of the sciences' because our present problem is that of ever better social adjustment in our ways of living here upon earth."

Note that Dr. Barnes is "professor of sociology." The occupant of a specialized college chair may be allowed to entertain notions of his own about the proper occupant of the throne of "the queen of the sciences."

But what about this bugbear, "orthodox religion?" Prof. Barnes pictures the scientific reformer of God and religion marching under the double-headed banner of astrophysics and mental hygiene as exalted in his duty by "the apprehension that human misery and suffering are being increased and perpetuated by orthodox religion, and the belief of the scientist that he can reduce this suffering and increase human well-being!"

Blinded, perhaps, by the excesses of the fundamentalists, Prof. Barnes seems actually to believe that modern Christianity, as practiced by millions of intelligent, educated, healthy and happy people throughout the world, is a monster of superstition, producing misery and suffering, and he talks of "the widespread contraction of mental and nervous diseases which are a product of this same unscientific concepton of desirable human behavior." He declares that he "sincerely believes orthodox religion to be the foremost existing obstacle to human happiness and well-being!"

There are vast numbers of men and women in this country who sincerely endeavor to guide their lives by the essential teachings of the Christian religion as they are presented in thousands of churches today. They include enlightened leaders of the people in every walk of life. They are neither ignorant nor superstitious nor hypercritical. Thousands of them are at least equal in intellectual power and in life experience to any college professor occupying any chair whatever. They include judges, lawyers, merchants, writers, philanthropists, leaders and founders of great industries.

Bible Passages

Wealth

(Psalm 49)

HEAR this, all ye people; give ear, all ye inhabitants of the world:

Both low and high, rich and poor, together.

My mouth shall speak of wisdom; and the meditation of my heart shall be of understanding.

I will incline mine ear to a parable: I will open my dark saying upon the harp.

Wherefore should I fear in the days of evil, when the iniquity of my heels shall compass me about?

They that trust in their wealth, and boast themselves in the multitude of their riches;

None of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him:

(For the redemption of their soul is precious, and it ceaseth for ever:)

That he should still live for ever, and not see corruption.

For he seeth that wise men die, likewise the fool and the brutish person perish, and leave their wealth to others.

Their inward thought is, that their houses shall continue for ever, and their dwelling places to all generations; they call their lands after their own names.

Nevertheless man being in honour abideth not: he is like the beasts that perish.

This their way is their folly: yet their posterity approve their sayings. Selah.

Like sheep they are laid in the grave; death shall feed on them; and the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning; and their beauty shall consume in the grave from their dwelling.

But God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave: for he shall receive me. Selah.

Be not thou afraid when one is made rich, when the glory of his house is increased;

For when he dieth he shall carry nothing away: his glory shall not descend after him.

Though while he lived he blessed his soul: and men will praise thee, when thou doest well to thyself.

He shall go to the generation of his fathers; they shall never see light.

Man that is in honour, and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish.

Secret Wealth

NO man can say that any life is drear
Because its sluggish waters slowly flow
Before his gaze, unquickened, year by year,
Unstirred by any kindly winds that blow,

Who knows? That being, dull and stagnant now,
May once have fed from such translucent springs
That, though no glory lingers on its brow,
Far, far within the living water sings.

For some, in one sweet, unforgotten hour,
Have plumbed such wells of deathless ecstacy
As left them with a never-failing dower
Of joy too deep for casual eyes to see.

This Thing Called Luck

By Herbert Kaufman

ACCIDENT leads the way to success, but never develops it. Lots of men have been literally shoved into fortunes. Time and again, circumstances conspire to lift folk to unexpected affluence. Luck, though, neither clinches wealth nor power.

McLaughlin and his fellow-discovers of the Comstock Lode didn't realize the difference between Opportunity's forelock and a false switch.

They owned title to the richest strike in Western history, and the most any of the three got out of it was $40,000.

Nature is willing to furnish the specifications for the wildest dream, but she looks to her partners in every enterprise to contribute a due share of initiative and management.

Imagination has the same code. She reveals possibility, and then delegates the job to persistence and judgment.

Inventions are born of sudden notions. But the distance from the nebulous idea to the finished product is a long, arduous road.

The first sickle may have been a happenstance, but the first combine wasn't.

Franklin's key didn't unlock radio or harness Niagara's latent energy.

The rough conceptions of self-playing piano, phonograph, turbine, telephone and locomotive were snatched out of the air.

But many a dogged year was spent before they became operative.

Providence located the Osage Indian reservation on an oil field, but didn't put pipe lines there.

An unpaid account changed the Guggenheims from lace merchants to mining magnates.

One of their customers couldn't pay his bill and they were forced to accept a Colorado claim in settlement, or whistle for the money.

Destiny elected them to be copper kings, but ability kept them on the throne.

The World War snatched Herbert Hoover from the backgrounds of action and appointed him captain of civilian relief; but relentless drudgery and administrative skill demonstrated his fitness for the post and every subsequent promotion.

Fate introduced Campbell Stewart, an inexperienced, recordless youngster, to Lord Northcliffe.

The encounter led to a position on his staff; but his consistent climb to journalistic eminence was achieved on the balance sheet.

There's hardly a failure who hasn't on one occasion or another drawn the winning cards.

We all get a whack at the deck, but most of us don't play strong hands when we hold them.

My next door neighbor in London hotel wanders through Europe independent of guides and interpreters and talks business with foreigners in their own togue. He can take up a volume by Flaubert or Feuchtwanger, Ibanez or d'Annunzio and read it in the original. But you can't have everything. He has to buzz for a valet to tie his necktie.

The London papers are atwitter this evening over three futile efforts to find a collar button swallowed by Lord somebody at Wimbledon. Why not buy the old bean another one?

And one of the high bicycle society weeklies devotes a page to film news and the cinema celebrities and with a snooty back spin lists them under the caption: "O my God, of the Movies!"

A luncheon today in a London home took on the ceremonial pomp of a coronation. The piece de resistance was a Stilton cheese. It seems the host had been wet nursing it along since early fall. Every day he would take it out of its bedding and tenderly ply it with rare old Port. One must know how to administer the exact draughts or the cheese curls up and becomes crumby. The connoisseurs seemed enraptured and babbled ecstatically of its "fruitiness" and "tawny tang." I suppose it was marvelous but my cheese taste is dormant. It has never progressed beyond the rat trap stage.

There is a bit of magic, a quality of fantasy, that glamours a London night. Not even that gay whirling microcosm we call Broadway surpasses it. By day London is depressingly drab but by night it has a polish. Every motor car blazes with light. Piquant faces nestle in furry cloaks. The men are marvelously groomed, self satisfied, boutonniered. It is only at night one becomes conscious this fog leagured city is not only buoyant but—and I hate the term, too—smart.

The longer I remain in London the more I yearn for one of those owl eyed butlers, named Miles or such, who is always crossing the room with a decanter on a silver tray.

Isn't It So?

Most actors prefer a small role to an entire loaf.

Rare is the man who can go downtown on a cold winter morning and refrain from lying about his thermometer.

Don't think that because a soft answer turns away wrath that it will work the same way with a book agent.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

IF YOU are waiting for a time when everything will be just right to start some undertaking you will never get at it.

Too many persons excuse themselves for neglect of things they know they ought to do by putting off the starting point with a flimsy excuse that things are not yet "just right."

Too many class themselves as artists, so they think, when they say, they cannot paint until the spirit moves them.

Quite an acceptable coat to put on, when they don't want to do or finish a certain thing at a given time.

You have in mind something that would add appreciably to your income.

You delay in starting because your present income carries you along pretty well and you are not in the right frame of mind to start something.

It might be years before you would feel the need of the money that might be yours if you would get to work.

But in the meantime the demand might cease and you could not do it.

It is the spirit of putting off the start that hampers growth.

Make the most of opportunity while it is yet opportunity.

Give to the public what it wants at the time it is wanted.

Later the demand may be for something else.
